Reds Taking Hainan

Chiang Orders Evacuation

HONG KONG, April 24—Chinese Nationalist generals and civil officials fled to Formosa today from Hainan where Communist invaders have routed 125,000 defenders and have driven them to a "Dunkirk" on the island's south shore.

Gen. Hsueh Yueh, the Nationalist commander, his staff and Governor Chan Chai-tin left for the last Nationalist stronghold after Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek ordered the immediate evacuation of Hainan.

Three ships loaded with Nationalist troops also succeeded in escaping, but a shortage of shipping is expected to leave most of the defenders to death or capture by the Communists.

The Nationalist defeat is expected to free sufficient shipping for the Communists to mount an attack on the Chusan Islands, 90 miles southeast of Shanghai, and thereby smash the Nationalist blockade of South and Central China.

The Chusans have been a valuable pivot for the Nationalists in their efforts to strangle the seaborne commerce of the Communist mainland.

ANOTHER RESULT of the fall of Hainan may be the evacuation of the Ladrone Islands southwest of the British crown colony of Hong Kong.

Travelers arriving in Hong Kong by air from Hainan said that Nationalist resistance has collapsed completely and that Communists will need only a few days to complete "mopping up" operations on the 13,500-square mile island.

A statement by the Nationalist Central News Agency said the defenders of Hainan mainly were battle-worn troops who had suffered earlier defeats on the Chinese mainland.

The statement emphasized that the forces on Hainan are not comparable in training or equipment with the new army.

Senate Leaders Drive For OK Of Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, April 24—Senate leaders—with a possible assist from Russia—drive this week for a vote on the $3.372 billion foreign aid bill.

Sen. McMahon, (D) Conn., chairman of the Congressional Atomic Committee, predicted the Senate will reject attempts to trim Marshall Plan funds in the measure.

McMahon, also a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declared that events of the last few weeks show that this is not time to discontinue or cripple the Cold War program. He said:

"The need for the Marshall program is as great today as it was on the day we started the program. When we look at what has happened since the last appropriation was made to say nothing of events of the last four weeks, we can see that this is no time to reduce aid to our allies."

McMahon referred to Russia's action in shooting down an unarmed U. S. Navy plane over the Baltic, the threatened march of Communist youths on Berlin and other increased Cold War tensions.

Senate Armed Services Chairman Tydings, (D) Md., indicated he thought debate on the bill will bring a thorough floor airing of the Cold War status. He said new tensions will "warm" the debate.

THE FIRST of thirteen full-scale replicas of the Liberty Bell is lifted out of the hold of the Excalibur, arriving at New York from Ancey, France. Fifty-two reproductions of the famous bell will be used to highlight the U. S. Treasury Department's next bond drive. The first shipment will be distributed to the 13 original states.

Truman Speech To Deny Reds Gaining In America

WASHINGTON, April 24—President Truman will deny flatly tonight that the administration has failed to stop Communist invasion of the State Department and other government agencies.

A White House source said that the chief executive will not "call any names," but most specifically will give the reply direct to the GOP charges of Communism in government.

Mr. Truman will refute the accusations in a nationwide radio broadcast to be made before the 30th annual dinner of the Federal Bar Association in Washington.

It will be broadcast by the NBC and ABC networks at 10 p. m.

The speech marks the first time that the President in open forum—with the exception of his Key West remarks—has answered the charges leveled by Sen. Joe McCarthy, (R) Wis., and others on Capitol Hill.

White House aides said the address will be a "major speech" and that in addition to the President's rebuttal of the Red charges, the talk will include:

1. Steps taken to rebuild free nations abroad.
2. The military assistance program abroad.
3. Efforts taken to combat Communism within the U. S.

One aide said that while he did not want "to say that it (the speech) is a sensation, it is important." He added:

"IT WILL embrace efforts of the American government to combat Communism with special emphasis on the loyalty program."

Mishaps Cut Cop Force In Half

WILLOUGHBY, April 24—The police department in nearby Eastlake Village is really up against it.

Three patrolmen, one half of the force, are accident victims and the village's only police cruiser is smashed. Two police men, Arthur Kerchagasser, 43, and John Tomlinson, 37, were sent to a hospital in East Cleveland Saturday after their car smashed into a tree.

Patrolman John Meeker is recovering from a fractured arm received in an accident some time ago.

Other problems—such as the trend of business, labor issues, nationwide gambling and senatorial investigations of Communist infiltration into government—were placed in a secondary category to that of the Cold War.

The publishers reported business conditions as good in all parts of the country. They expressed confidence they could solve their own problems such as the decline in newsprint production and the rising costs of putting out newspapers.

Roy Roberts, president and general manager of The Kansas City Star, said he "sincerely hoped" the nation could avoid becoming embroiled in another war. He said the responsibility of newspapers today is even greater than it was during the last war.

"We are living in a period of extreme tensions," said Roberts. "They are likely to grow rather than lessen."

"We publishers must weigh what we publish so as to avoid hysteria that might lead from a cold to a hot war. That would be the end of everything."

"We must publish the facts and keep the public informed as the Iron Curtain goes down in tant threat over here, but nevertheless we have been taking no chances."

This aide contended that "the investigator branches of the government have investigated every case of known or alleged Communism in this country."

It was made amply clear that the President will go into the probes carried on by the FBI of alleged Communists holding top federal posts.

It was made amply clear that Truman was vacationing in Key West recently, he angrily denounced McCarthy, and GOP Sens. Bridges, N. H., and Wherry, Neb.

Mr. Truman is not expected to go into personalities tonight, but instead to cover the entire issue of whether there are Communists in the government.

Complete Ban On Race News Asked By FCC

WASHINGTON, April 24—The Federal Communications Commission gives Congress today a bill flatly prohibiting the interstate transmission of racing news.

The FCC bill will contend for congressional favor with one presented by the Justice Department which calls for a complicated system of checks to achieve the same end.

FCC Chairman Wayne Coy will present his measure to a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. McFarland, (D) Ariz. Attorney General McGrath gave the Justice Department proposal to the group last week.

The FCC proposal would slap a flat prohibition on the interstate transmission of racing odds and winning prices by telephone, radio or telegraph facilities.

The Justice Department bill already before the subcommittee would establish a complicated system of delaying, but not barring, such news. The Justice bill also would make the communication carriers responsible for seeing that such information does not go to illegal bookmaking establishments.

Supporters of the proposal to be explained by Coy contend that it is clearly constitutional while some senators believe there is some question about the bill offered by McGrath.

10,000 Men Start Phone Walkout

General Strike Due Wednesday

NEW YORK, April 24—A strike order for ten thousand key telephone installation men went into effect at 6 a. m. today preceding a general walkout of 240,000 telephone workers set for Wednesday.

The nationwide strike of installation personnel was not expected to affect telephone communications because the idle workers do not plan picketing which would prevent employees in phone exchanges from reporting for work.

Orders for the installers strike were issued here early today by Ernest Weaver, president of division six of the CIO Communications Workers of America.

Weaver acted as federal mediators in sessions extending beyond midnight failed to win a settlement of the union's dispute with the Western Electric Co.

Weaver said, "there will be no picketing until and unless the general strike starts Wednesday. We are calling the strike because of the company's decision to fire 104 men at South Bend, Ind."

A spokesman for the company denied that the men are being fired.

The dispute started when four men in South Bend refused to walk a mile and a half through a muddy field to install telephone equipment in a television tower.

SUBSEQUENT to this incident 100 of their co-workers walked off the job in sympathy, and the union has demanded that the workers be paid in full since March 27.

A company spokesman said: "Western Electric wanted this handled as a grievance matter as provided for in the contract, the union insisted on arbitration. The position of the men is totally invalid and even their own union has ordered them back to work."

"Nobody has been fired but letters were sent to the men last Thursday saying that if they don't report to work this morning they will be presumed to have resigned."

5 N&W Workers Killed In West Virginia Tunnel

WELCH, W. Va., April 24—Five railroad workmen were killed near here today when they were hit by a Norfolk and Western Railway passenger train in a tunnel.

The men, en route to repair a bridge, were riding on a "go-devil" which collided with the train on a curve in the tunnel.

The train had been routed on an auxiliary track while repairs were being made.

35 Bodies Recovered

Military Plane Found On Mount

YOKOHAMA, April 24—U. S. Army crews prepared today to bring down from a lofty Japanese mountainside the bodies of 35 Americans killed when a C-54 military transport crashed in flames while nearing Tokyo on a flight from Manila.

Investigators sought, meanwhile, to learn the cause of the tragedy which occurred late Friday night.

The difficult task of identifying the mangled bodies of 27 passengers and eight crewmen on the 4,600-foot level of craggy Mount Hirugatake was proceeding on the crash site from which all unofficial observers were barred.

Army authorities hoped to bring the bodies of 30 men, three women and two 'teen-agers down from the mountain and into Yokohama by tonight.

STRETCH DRIVE AHEAD

Rhodes And DiSalle Trying Catch Ebright, Ferguson

COLUMBUS, April 24—Ohio's pre-primary campaign entered the home stretch today with Mayor James Rhodes and Michael DiSalle still trying desperately to catch Don Ebright and Joe Ferguson.

The races for the Republican nomination for governor and the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate still captured the bulk of attention as the slow-moving campaign entered its final full week before the balloting a week from tomorrow. And Ebright and Ferguson remained the favorites.

Secretary of State Charles E. Sweeney, who is unopposed for renomination, is sticking to his prediction of a light vote of

School Musicians Said 'Superior' In Adjudications

Circleville high school musicians excelled Saturday during the state finals adjudications held in Capital University.

The brass quartet, composed of Jim Bartholomew, Warren Leist, Charles Magill and Bob Chafin, won a top rating of "superior" during the program.

Bartholomew also ranked "superior" in the statewide program for trumpet solo. The lad won the rating by playing "Above the Clouds."

Magill, only other Circleville soloist to compete in the program, won a rating of "excellent" for his trombone work on "Waltz Romanticque."

Leist, in addition to playing in the brass quartet, played piano accompaniment for the soloists.

Truman Eberly, high school music instructor, said the young musicians were judged for tone, rhythm, poise, tempo and appearance.

The instructor added that the adjudications were not on a competitive basis but that the musicians were judged solely on their own performances.

Some Westerners think Senator McCarthy has talked rather strongly without proving his charges of disloyalty any too well.

Philip D. Adler, publisher of The Davenport (Iowa) Democrat, said the Communist situation is "a far cry" in his part of the Middle West where "we are interested in corn."

George T. Cameron, publisher of The San Francisco Chronicle, said Far Westerners are "completely confused" by the international situation and cannot understand another country shooting down one of our planes.

Benjamin N. McKelway, editor of The Washington, D. C., Star, said that if there are any disloyal people in the government "we have got to get them out."

"But," he added, "we ought to center our attention on getting them out in the right way—that is by using the machinery now set up in Washington, such as the loyalty boards and the FBI."

"We should not go after individuals with a shotgun and hurt people who may be innocent, in the hope something might be turned up."

around 800,000, split about evenly between the two parties.

In the last off-year elections, there were 359,799 Democrats and 392,072 Republicans in 1946 and 355,196 Democrats and 392,035 Republicans in 1942—the last two elections in non-presidential years.

EBRIGHT, now completing his sixth two-year term as state treasurer, claimed this weekend that he would carry "a substantial plurality in every county of the state." He carries his campaign this week into Athens, Mahoning, Summit and Cuyahoga Counties.

Rhodes, however, has been getting the headlines and undoubtedly has gained considerable ground on Ebright since the start of the campaign. The question is just as it has been—can the Columbus mayor overtake Ebright before the primary?

Rhodes' latest blast at the Democratic administration of Governor Lausche—who has only nominal opposition for renomination—charged that liquor licenses are still being issued despite an announced "freeze."

Like Ebright, Rhodes will spend most of the final week in vote-rich Cleveland and Northeastern Ohio. But before starting on his last big swing he charged:

"If you know the right people, the governor and the liquor dealers."

Hospital Escapee Is Being Held

Dunlap Loss Set At About $50,000

Pickaway County law enforcement officials Monday were investigating the possibility of arson in the $50,000 fire which razed the Atlanta Grain Co. Saturday night.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he arrested a man for investigation in connection with the blaze.

He said the man had escaped from the U. S. veteran's hospital near Chillicothe earlier Saturday and had been in the neighborhood when the fire started.

Officials from the state fire marshal's office were to make a complete investigation and assist in further questioning of the hospital escapee.

Circleville's rural fire unit, manned by Fire Chief Talmer Wise, was called to assist in the uncontrollable blaze at 9:25 p. m. Saturday. The haze from the burning four-story structure was seen from the Scioto River bridge, nearly 20 miles from the building itself.

John Dunlap Jr., owner of the demolished Atlanta Mill, said he estimated loss at from between $50,000 to $60,000.

Hundreds of persons were attracted to the scene of the blaze by the flames, which shot nearly 100 feet into the air.

OFFICIALS stated that they believed the fire originated in the cob-room of the plant, spreading throughout the building.

The blaze was whipped by a breeze as it spread, fanning the flames and casting showers of sparks for several hundred yards. The galvanized sheet-steel covering of the building was credited with saving the adjoining buildings. Firemen said the steel covering kept the heat of the blaze confined to the immediate area of the building.

Dunlap said the building recently had been repaired and

Little Hope Seen To Avert Railway Strike

CHICAGO, April 24—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen said today there are "no new developments" which might avert the union's threatened strike, set for 7 a. m. Wednesday.

It appeared that only federal intervention can halt the walk-out of 80,000 union members. The National Railway Mediation Board has reported to the White House on the crisis.

The brotherhood is demanding employment of an additional fireman on multiple-unit diesel-electric locomotives. This has been rejected by the railroads and two presidential fact-finding boards on the grounds that an extra fireman is not warranted. The union claims the additional fireman is necessary in the "interest of public safety."

modernized, with thousands of dollars worth of new equipment. Most costly of the new equipment which was destroyed was a $3,000 hammermill, he said.
Circleville's rural unit was aided in protecting surrounding buildings by departments from New Holland, Clarksburg, Mt. Sterling and Williamsport. The units drained several cisterns surrounding the building.
Nearly 3,500 bushels of corn also were lost in the blaze. Dunlap said the corn had been stored in one of the two cement silos which were part of the mill.
The silo full of corn toppled to the ground shortly before the bottom stories of the building caved in, cascading corn and cement blocks onto a railroad spur behind the plant. The empty silo remained standing, although Dunlap said Monday he believed it would have to be torn down also.

VANMETER-HULSE of near Atlanta reportedly discovered the blaze and alerted the fire departments.

Meanwhile, shortly after the discovery, George Skinner, George Donohoe and Leonard and Ray Reisinger dashed into the building to save a tractor and a gasoline power unit. The intense heat halted further salvage attempts.

Dunlap stated that nearly $7,000 worth of feed also was lost in the fire. Workmen hastily loaded one truck with feed on the wind side of the fire.

The owner stated that the first feed and grain mill had been erected on the site in 1897 by Grant Campbell. Two other mills have been destroyed by fire on the same site since then, Dunlap added.

Dunlap said Monday he plans to build another mill soon on the same site.

"We'll try to put up a fire-resistant mill this time," the owner said. "When the other mill was built no one knew much about fireproofing."

Pickaway County lawmen and several state highway patrol units were summoned to assist in handling a severe traffic problem, caused when passing motorists flocked to the scene to witness the blaze.

Driver Fined After Mishap

Elmer Hill, 47, of 126 South Pickaway street, was fined $75 and costs Monday in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller for leaving the scene of an accident.

Officer Rod List said the Hill car struck a car owned by Harold Clifton. The car was parked in front of Clifton's home at 307 South Court street when the Hill auto struck it at about 3:45 a. m. Sunday, List said.

The Legion Boys' State is set up to give outstanding high school juniors an actual experience in city and state governments, with regular elections of officers for each of the cities and the state groups.

Circleville American Legion also is expected to be represented during this year's session, although it has not yet named its delegates.

The resolution, passed unanimously by both the Senate and House last week, permits the Navy secretary to award the decorations and other appropriate honors to the missing American fliers.

It was introduced in Congress after the State Department accused Russia of shooting down the Navy Privateer over the Baltic Sea April 8.

Conquest of Hainan will mark the first successful major amphibious operation by the Chinese Communists except for river crossings.

The Nationalist news agency said that 400 junks were used to ferry 30,000 troops of the Communist 40th and 43rd armies into the battle across the 15-mile-wide Hainan Straits.

Formosa, roughly the same size as Hainan, is 100 miles from the Chinese mainland and presents mountainous terrain well-suited to defensive purposes compared with the relatively flat Hainan.

Gardner Ends 53 Years On Job

Dr. George R. Gardner, Ashville physician, has just completed 53 years of practicing medicine and is still daily on the job.

With the exception of three years spent in practicing medicine in South Bloomfield, Commercial Point, and Youngstown, where he practiced surgery, Dr. Gardner has resided in Ashville where he has ministered to the "aches and pains" of the community for 50 years.

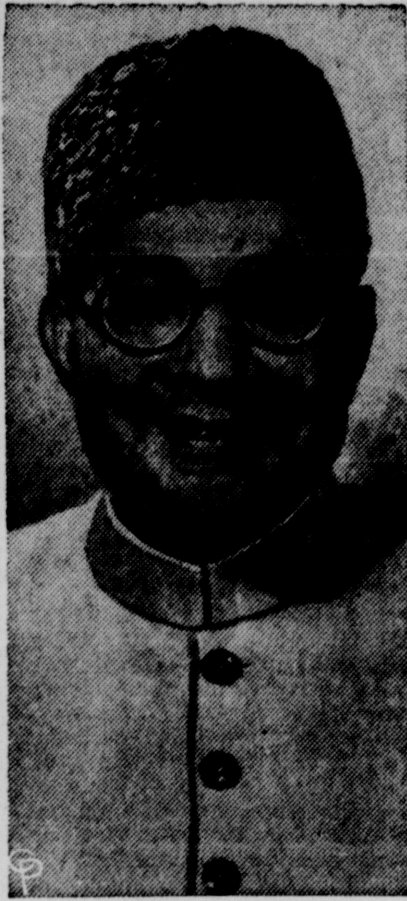

Dr. Gardner is a graduate of the old Ohio Medical university, Columbus. He recently was presented with a 50-year pin at a meeting of Pickaway County Medical Society.

Slav Center Is Dedicated

CLEVELAND, April 24—Governor Frank J. Lausche hailed Free America yesterday as he dedicated the new $100,000 Yugoslav center in suburban Euclid.

Nearly 300 persons, representing some 20,000 Americans of Serbian, Slovenian and Croatian descent in Euclid and the neighboring east side of Cleveland were on hand to open the two-story building.

Lausche, giving part of his address in Slovenian, said that "in a Free America, you will always be able to speak your language and give voice to your song, even if your ancestral literature and music should be destroyed in Europe, where your roots are deep."

Two Women Slugged After Church Dance

CLEVELAND, April 24 — Two young Cleveland women were slugged early today by two youths who had followed them from a dance at St. Hyacinth's Catholic church on Cleveland's east side.

One of the youths was arrested a few minutes later by police.

The two women, Miss Elinore Skory, 24, and Miss Stella Apanasewicz, 29, had witnessed a minor traffic accident while walking home and awoke Ben Goszowt, 57, to tell him about it.

While they were talking to Goszowt, the two thugs burst into the house and struck Miss Skory in the face and pushed Miss Apanasewicz. Goszowt also was slugged.

Police arrived after Goszowt's wife had called them and one of the youths, who had returned to the house, was captured in a second floor bedroom.

Channel Swimming Veteran Gives Advice On Dover-To-France Trip

LONDON, April 24—The 58-year-old voice of experience in English Channel swimming has laid down some rules for America's entries in competition—eat plenty of meat and ignore people who call you a "lunatic."

Dr. George Basil Brewster, who will make his 14th attempt to swim the 21 miles of frigid choppy sea from England to France this year, offered the advice to, among others, Steve Wozniak, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Wozniak, billing himself as the "world's swimming champion," is the latest entry in the cross channel free-for-all to be sponsored by The London Daily Mail. The newspaper will give $2,800 each to the first man and woman to swim the channel and $700 to every person who makes it.

Altogether, about 100 persons have announced they want to challenge the channel this year, either in the Daily Mail race or on their own.

About the "lunatic" jibes, Dr. Brewster says he can speak with sad personal experience, that one reason his wife had left him was his devotion to the channel. "She thought I was mad," Brewster said, "to keep up swimming at my age."

Brewster said channel swimmers need plenty of meat to provide the energy for the gruelling swim, which might last 24 hours or more. He said he figured that the channel swimmer uses up 500 calories an hour—four days' supply.

The doctor, a general practitioner, trains practically the year 'round for his perennial onslaughts on the channel.

Since January, with the waters no warmer than 48 degrees, Brewster has been taking weekly dips in the channel off Dover. He started with 20 minutes per practice swim and will work up to about seven or eight hours before he tries it all the way across.

The closest Brewster has come thus far is about five miles from the French coast on the trip from Dover.

But, Brewster insisted, this may be the year.

ITEMS IT PAYS TO SAVE

FRANKLIN D. Roosevelt never discarded any written document, says Karl Schriffigesser, writing in the New York Times Magazine. He kept Christmas cards, birthday greetings, old bills and check stubs, baseball passes and everything else conceivable. Now this mass of trivialities, mingled with many papers of immense historic value, is in the Roosevelt library at Hyde Park, N. Y., to be sorted over by the trained employees of the National Archives.

If the practically impossible happened and this collection were ever put up for sale, vast sums could be realized. Roosevelt's autograph and items owned by him, even the most insignificant, would each command a price ranging from fair to high, according to the historic value of the piece.

This is true for all noted figures. When Rudyard Kipling was living in Vermont, he had great trouble in balancing his checkbook. His checks for milk and other current bills were not cashed, but kept and sold, the autograph commanding much higher prices than the face value of the check.

Herein lies a hint for those about to be famous. Keep your minor items and cash in on them later. Of course your neat wife may be horrified. She will probably say, "What do you want to keep that for? Do you think you are going to be famous?" Well, who knows?

But if all of us kept all the pieces of paper which ought to be destroyed, there'd be no living in the houses of any of us. It would be a paper world.

TRAFFIC LAW BREAKERS

HOW MANY traffic violators are there? If Foster M. Kunz of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is right, the figures are startling. Speaking at the convention of the Greater New York Safety Council, he said that in one year twelve million drivers were arraigned for breach of traffic rules. That would be one out of every four.

These statistics may seem exaggerated, but on some Sundays it can be believed that they are sound to the last zero. It does sometimes seem that all these lawbreakers are out on the road at once.

We find it hard to understand why human beings go to sleep on railroad tracks.

Any married couple, with a couple of youngsters, knows that marriage is a racket.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

Americans are accustomed to a constantly rising standard of living. Two yardsticks may be used to measure the standard of living:

1. The quantity of goods and services available for the earned dollar;
2. The number of hours of work that is required to purchase a unit of any commodity; say a loaf of bread, a shirt, a pair of shoes, a bottle of milk, etc.

Neither of these yardsticks has much to do with quality, but that has been assumed. Generally speaking, as the standard of living improved, the quality of goods was improved because of completion. During the war, both the quantity and quality of goods declined. This was to have been expected and was accepted with good grace. It was a sacrifice the people made for the war. For example, they were served the category of beef known as commercial, suitable for sausages, etc., but not for the private kitchen. And they took it.

However, after the war, prices continued high. In fact, wages, both immediate and postponed, rose. So, prices rose. (Postponed wages include pensions and social benefits which are not immediately paid to the worker but are loaded on to the price.)

The public had had a bad market for buying during the war period. They were short of all sorts of necessities as well as luxuries, and buying became wild for a time and then a resistance set in. The manufacturers met that by new models, new gadgets, new designs, but not always with the same or improved quality. In fact, there is a suspicion that in actual quality, one is not getting his money's worth.

Now, something new is happening. Stimulated by ECA, with the hope of producing more dollars, all sorts of alien-made products are being poured into this country. Watches, ceramics and woollens are the first to feel the impact, but it will hit all consumer goods industries. I saw an advertisement recently of British-made lawnmowers.

This is not a simple question that takes a yes or no answer. We cannot go on subsidizing countries and yet, if we are not to subsidize them, they must sell goods where they can. If they sell too much in our market, they will throw some of our industries into distress and lots of workers out of jobs.

Even if we undertake to aid our wards in the most friendly and encouraging manner to sell their wares in our markets, this will sooner or later become a political problem in this country and more opposition is to be expected from the labor unions than from businessmen. The ITO, which is now popular with sectors of labor, will surely become a plague to this country politically when the effects of it are clear.

The new census, according to officials in charge, is expected to reveal that there are more women in the United States than men. This will surprise no city dweller who watches the crowds on the sidewalks, or who has to stand in line at bank or post office.

Life is impeded by people who want the benefits without the accompanying obligations.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

JENNY'S BLUE eyes softened. Dick was desperately unhappy, anyone could see that. But why? "What happened this morning?" She ignored his belligerence.

"Nothing. Elsa made some swell waffles. She'll never cook like you do," he said in unconscious praise, "but these were good. Elsa says I made a pig of myself, but Elsa said I could have all I wanted. And all the butter and syrup, too."

Jenny bit back the remark that Pete was far from tactful. "He said that this morning?" "No, he didn't say anything. He's always a grouch in the morning, but he didn't open his mouth."

Jenny started to ask "Then why?" but decided against it. "She shifted her line of inquiry. 'How was school today?' " "Okay. I got an A in algebra, and a B plus in history. I'm not so hot in English, though."

"You mean, you failed?" "No." He looked at her briefly. "I never fail anything."

"Did you have a fight with one of your pals?"

"Nope." His eyes were down again. He was eating slowly now, and she had the feeling he was closing the door against her. She said, in desperation, "It's a good thing your father wasn't home for dinner tonight, or he'd be worried sick. Elsa—"

He turned toward her with a jerk. "Listen!" he said. "He's not worrying about me these days, he's got other things to think about. I'm fed up with him and his—his—"

"The word eluded him, but he did not stop. An angry color swept up under his skin. 'I saw him sitting there with your sister, having a drink and looking at her like—like—'

"My sister?" Jenny echoed, with a distinct shock. Knowing in advance what he was going to say. "Yeah, your sister Diane. At St. Peter's. And he told Elsa he was coming home for dinner tonight, and now you say he never showed up!"

It took a little time, but Jenny finally got the story from him of how, under cover of his casual attitude, he had been worrying for several weeks about his father's absences. Of how, to make money for Christmas, he had engaged to remove the crates and cartons from the back of St. Peter's Tavern for the sum of a dollar a week. It never took him long, and he did it on his way home from the school bus every day. Of how today he had seen his father and Diane there together, and it had made him feel sick. He had waited around and then followed them as they left. He had heard them discuss the possibility of going on—in Pete's car—to dinner at an out-of-town restaurant.

"I guess that's when I got fed up," he said.

"up," he said. "I made up my mind I wouldn't go home. I didn't want to worry Elsa. I heard some of what she said when she was here," he confessed, "but I wasn't going back there."

"But where could you go?" Jenny asked, quite seriously, and he answered her the same way. "I don't know. That's what I was thinking about up in your attic. I had to have some place. My mother wouldn't want me, I know that. And I'd never get away with trying to get a job somewhere. I'm still too young, and I'd be picked up in a minute. I mean, I'm not the kind of kid can get away with looking like eighteen or nineteen. I don't shave yet, or anything."

Jenny nodded, her eyes encouraging him to continue. "So I thought," he took a deep breath, "I thought maybe you could put me up. It'd only be for a couple of years and then I could go to work, see? And I could do lots of things around the house. You'd save money, really; you wouldn't have to hire Ruthven."

Jenny said, "It wouldn't do, though, Dick. I'd have to have your parents' consent, and even though Pete and Elsa are my friends—"

"They don't really want me!" he broke in. "Nobody wants me, I guess."

This was the crux of the whole matter. Jenny was really angry with Pete. What right had he to slide out of this whole situation because he was afraid of a little emotional upheaval? What right had he to ignore his son's very real need of him, simply because he did not feel at ease with the boy? But she hid her anger and said instead, "Elsa wants you."

Surprisingly, he did not deny it. "Yeah, she's pretty nice," he conceded. "At any rate, she tries to be. But I'm not dumb. I can see how my being there has upset everything for her."

Jenny ignored this. Her mind was on another track. She said, "Did you hear everything she said when she was here, Dick?"

"Well, pretty near," he said sheepishly. "I was in the upstairs hall in my stocking feet."

"Then you heard what she said about the change in her life together. She said that little things which didn't used to matter were big nowadays just because you were there. And I think that what she meant, Dick, was that they felt you were critical of them, and so things that formerly meant nothing at all were looming large because they were so self-conscious about them. You see, married people can have little spats that don't mean a thing. But if someone is watching them, and waiting for a quarrel, the spats do turn into quarrels."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The omnibus appropriation bill has been cut by over a billion and a half but it still doesn't look like many missed the bus.

Even at $29 billion, this omnibus bill provides the transportation on which everybody expects to ride back to office.

Claude Pepper says he got better than a billion dollars for his state in recent years and hopes to do better if reelected.

That may explain why Mr. Truman and Mayor O'Dwyer have been spending so much time in Florida. . . trying to get the hang of Claude's operation.

But you multiply Claude by 48 states with two senators each and you can see we're going to need bigger omnibus bills and larger omnibuses leaving Washington with space for carrying the largesse.

The congressmen tried to increase their own salaries under the bill, but were ruled "out of order." They were standing in the wrong line—that's another bus.

The New York Public Library, one of the six largest in the world, was founded in 1895.

Try, Stop Me

When Judge Charles Ramsgate was sitting on the bench in night court recently a fugitive from Alcoholics Anonymous was dragged before him charged with drunk and disorderly conduct. Judge Ramsgate looked over the prisoner's record that had been placed before him, started visibly and said, "Do you realize that this is the seventh time you have been before this court on the same charge in the last six months?" The prisoner straightened momentarily, wiped a tear from his bleary eye, and pleaded, "Gee whiz, Your Honor, nobody's perfect."

Abel Green tells about the vaudevillian who boasted to an agent, "My name is Projecto, and I can fly. Just let me show you my act." The blase agent consented to go with him to an empty theatre nearby. True to his word, the actor promptly took off from the state, spiraled to the ceiling, circled the auditorium a couple of times, and zoomed down in a perfect glide. The agent yawned and said, "So you can imitate birds. What else can you do?"

POLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME

1—He was an American orator and statesman, born in Hanover county, Virginia, April 12, 1777. His early education was scant, but he was a voracious reader, talked well, and studied law. At 22 he was elected member of the Kentucky legislature, and at 29 was appointed to fill an unexpired term in the Senate. At 34 he was elected to the United States House of Representatives and chosen speaker. He was re-elected five times to the House and the speakership. He served as secretary of State and after the War of 1812, was sent as one of the peace commissioners to sign the treaty of Ghent. He was ambitious to be elected President of the United States, but never achieved this honor chiefly because of his attitude of compromise in the tariff and slavery questions. He was called the "Great Pacificator." He died in Washington on June 29, 1852.

He was nominally in charge of the German operations against Verdun. He followed his father in fight to Holland when Germany was defeated and forced to sign the armistice.

CIRCLEVILLE REXALL DRUGS

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—On Saturday night, the outlanders pour into New York; they come on buses from New Jersey and trains and highways from Westchester and Connecticut and they take over the saloons, the movies, the theaters, for a brief few hours before their furlough from suburban ends.

However, the dispossessed New Yorker must go somewhere, do something, too. So the regular in Linda's window, swamped by the influx of tourists, finds his way to a poker game in a Seventh avenue hotel.

The front-pew regular in El Morocco, temporarily inundated by the tide of visiting Long Islanders, throws a party at home. The Greenwich Villager, swept aside by the rush of brash ones hunting for Life on Eighth street, drifts morosely into somebody's attic and discusses Picasso or whither sex.

The prizefighter fan—the regular, the student of the game, the double-dyed, cigar-smoking expert—hauls himself over to Ridgewood Grove in Brooklyn for Saturday night's card.

They call the Grove the cradle of champions, which is not stretching the truth too much, but when you walk into it, after having picked your way carefully under the L tracks and past the trolley terminal for a few blocks, it seems a smoky and uncomfortable cradle. They can fit a couple of thousand men and women into the place, and they have done just that, this night you make your visit. The second of the four-round preliminaries is on as you find your way to your funeral-parlor chair at ringside.

A couple of young middleweights are tugging and hauling at each other in the ancient ring, and the crowd is paying them only mild attention. There is the slap and thud of gloves on sweating torsos, and there are wild swings by the dozen, but this is a ringwise audience.

THE CROWD WAITS. It has come to see a young East Sider named Micelli tonight, a knockout artist (as they say) on his way up. The crowd tolerates the preliminaries. "Getcha red hot!" a scholarly hotdog vendor cries. Beer salesmen, dispensers of the peanut, soda distributors, wander through the aisles almost disinterestedly.

They bring the young one, Micelli, into the ring finally and the crowd begins to awaken a little. You look around. Two kinds of people are in the house—the fight regulars, who are here Saturday, at the Garden Friday and at St. Nick's earlier in the week, and the young Brooklyn hotshots with their pretty, gum-chewing girls, out for a big evening.

Then the bell rings and they are out there alone under the lights, on this Saturday night when other young men are dancing at Roseland or necking in a parked car. Micelli moves around with that little jiggle of foot that the fancy Danc like and he throws a good left, and you know before you have looked at him a minute that in a year or two he may be someone to reckon with. But not quite yet.

He throws the left swiftly from long-range, once, twice, three times, and the Arizona fighter slides his head expertly away each time and then comes in close and whacks the young one in the ribs once or twice. The leathery little man next to you shifts his dead cigar meditatively. "Micelli can crush them with his right," he says, to no one in particular. "But maybe he ain't gonna hit this boy. This boy is a spoiler."

IT GOES LIKE THAT, the young one trying a little harder with each round to set up the professional for the rocks he throws with his right, and not succeeding. But they are both good, both several cuts above the preliminary boys, and the audience of experts warms to the task and roars occasional approval.

Sometimes they are all drama critics sitting in on a new revue, it seems, and other times they are parts of an orchestra surging noisily on cue the way the violins answer the conductor's baton.

You watch the young Micelli, who if he had gone some other path might be clerking in a grocery store or driving a bus somewhere. He is getting desperate, but coolly so, and he crowds in and tries to open up the Arizona fighter.

"Not tonight," the leathery man says, next to you. "A year from now. Not tonight." Then the last, hurried round is over and the two fighters slap each other on the back and go to their corners, for they are professionals and their evening's work is over and almost forgotten.

Well, they call it a draw, and the crowd hoots good-naturedly at the way the Arizona fighter has been swindled, but up in the ring he just grins a little, gets his robe on and starts down the steps for the shower. The crowd flies out, and when it emerges into the cold Brooklyn air, it begins to melt off in different directions.

"How about a beer?" a voice says behind you, and you see a couple of shapes divorce themselves from the procession and go into a nearby gin mill. You look at your wristwatch and you see that Saturday night is almost over.

Betty Jo Minshall Wed In Saturday Rites Read In Church Near Dayton

Daytonian Is Groom

Tapers in seven branched candelabra lighted the altar of Shiloh Congregational church near Dayton Saturday afternoon when Miss Betty Jo Minshall became the bride of Daniel Martin Garst.

The altar cross, before which the double ring ceremony took place, was flanked by single lighted tapers. Palms and tall vases of white flowers, lilies, snapdragons, carnations and gladioli formed the background for the marriage service performed by the Rev. Lee Meadows.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lutz Minshall of Pickaway Township, was escorted to the altar by her father.

Her marquisette gown was fashioned with a tight bodice inset with lace, and a very full bouffant skirt extending into a circular train. Tiny buttons formed a row down the front of the bodice which had a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves coming to points over the hands. Her finger tip veil was of illusion and held in place by a Juliette cap made of white lilies.

She carried a white Bible arrayed with three white carnations tied with satin streamers in which flowers-of-love had been knotted.

Maid-of-honor was Miss Betty Ann Parish of Columbus. Charles Lee of Dayton was best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Wilson Browning of Englewood and the late Mr. Clifford Garst. Ushers were Tom Myers of Dayton and Richard Van Winkle of Newark.

Miss Virginia Lentz of Columbus, soloist, sang three numbers preceding the ceremony.

Mrs. Minshall greeted her guests at the reception held in the church social rooms in a Navy blue suit. Her accessories were navy blue and yellow. Her corsage was made of yellow roses. Mrs. Browning wore navy blue also with a corsage of deep pink roses.

Reception hostesses were all members of Phi Mu sorority. They were Miss Florence Pymer of Cincinnati, Miss Nathalie Cerame of Long Island, Miss Mary Jo Daugherty of Piqua and Miss Sue Hummon of Wooster.

The new Mrs. Garst is a graduate of Saltcreek high school and of Ohio State university. She is employed in Dayton.

Mr. Garst, also a graduate of Ohio State university, is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. He is employed by a manufacturing firm in Tipp City.

The couple left immediately following the ceremony for a trip in the East. When they return they will live in the Dayton community.

Wedding guests from Pickaway County included Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Strous, Mrs. Dwight Vactor, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Enoch from the Saltcreek community; Mr. and Mrs. William Minshall and Miss Kathryn

Cancer Society Opening Finance Drive In County

A goal of $3,000 has been set as Pickaway County's quota in the 1950 campaign of the American Cancer Society.

The campaign got underway here Monday, will continue through May 20.

Co-chairman for this year's drive locally are Clarence Rushing, who has guided the cancer society's activities here for the last few years, and Mrs. Curtis Wertman of 123 Seyfert Avenue.

Headquarters for the society locally will be in the basement of the Moose Lodge, 144 East Main street.

A call was issued Monday by Mrs. Wertman for the assistance of Boy and Girl Scouts and all local civic clubs.

Rushing said that half of all local monies received in the local drive will remain in Pickaway County. Twenty-five percent will go to the state organization and the other 25 percent will go to national research.

Locally, he said, funds can be used in treatment of needy cases. He explained:

"THE SOCIETY cannot be used to pay doctor bills, but may provide biopsy examinations, treatment, medicine and nursing care."

The co-chairman declared that cancer still is not fully understood by the medical profession. He stressed that continual research is required to slash the high death rate among men, women and children.

He declared that "much progress has been made, but physicians could have saved more than a third of the 200,000 cancer victims in America last year if the patients had sought medical attention earlier. Knowledge of cancer symptoms could have brought life to thousands. We are urging full cooperation in this campaign to aid the spread of life-giving truth."

With the start of the local campaign, Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas: The fearsome disease, cancer, represents a serious community problem in Circleville as it affects on the average one of every two families in our city;

"Whereas: It is known measures can be taken to cut down the present cancer death-rate, easing the tragedy for individuals and lightening the community burden of the great social and economic losses resulting from this high death rate;

"Whereas: Cancer Control, to be effective, must be the vital concern of each and every one of us, therefore, I, Thurman I. Miller, mayor of the city of Circleville hereby proclaim the period April 24 to May 20 as Cancer Control Month and request that the citizens of this city observe it as such.

"I request that all individuals—for the protection of themselves and their loved ones—learn the essential facts about this disease. I further request that all individuals, institutions, businesses, and organizations support, cooperate with and assist the American Cancer Society in the 1950 Cancer Crusade."

Teen Tips

"Nothing to do except look at television"—that's the sad plight of a high school freshman, a girl, who wrote to us recently. Amazing! Nothing at all to do in this "big, wide, wonderful world" except watch television!

"I'm not allowed to have dates yet," she continues, "so the weekends are dull and I never know what to do with myself, especially if I've seen the movie in our town. What would you suggest?"

There are enough things to do, learn and enjoy to fill a tremendous library full of big, fat volumes. But here—in a general list—are some of the things that should be included in every high school girl's and boy's well-balanced life. . . without neglecting school work and home duties which always come first.

Earn some of your money and keep a budget. You'll be surprised how much farther you can make it go with a little thought.

Join at least two of the school organizations that interest you most and attend the meetings regularly so you can take an active part, get acquainted with more girls and boys and learn to get along with them.

Find a hobby. . . something that you enjoy doing, making or learning. This is fun, makes you and your life more interesting and the fact that you learn to excel in it will give you confidence.

English Find Milk Supply Now Surplus

WASHINGTON, April 24—The Agriculture Department reports that England expects a milk surplus of 10 million gallons a month above what is needed for consumption.

English dairymen are establishing new monthly records, the department says. The total production of milk in England and Wales during March is expected to be around 138 million gallons. Fluid consumption should be about 117 million gallons.

Another factor in the surplus is that the English are drinking less milk. Consumption has been on the down-grade for the last several months, the figures show. Non-priority users in England consume about two and a half pints a week.

Some of the methods proposed to ease the surplus problem include a "drink more milk" campaign, reduce milk prices, or allow farmers to separate a portion of the milk they produce.

Plane, Auto Fail Iturbi

WASHINGTON, April 24—Concert Pianist Jose Iturbi will keep an engagement in Washington tonight, but a little thing like a forced airplane landing washed out one in Baltimore last night.

Iturbi's scheduled concert in Baltimore was postponed until Tuesday after the plane in which he was flying from Syracuse got lost and circled for an hour before it ran out of gas and landed in a Maryland corn field. No one was hurt, but the automobile transportation with which Iturbi completed his trip to Baltimore just couldn't make the concert time.

4 Youths Cited For Heroism In Saving Lad, 14

WILLOUGHBY, April 24—Four Lake County youths were hailed as heroes today for their spectacular rescue of a 14-year-old Euclid boy who had been thrown into the Chagrin river in Willoughby when his canoe overturned.

The boy, Robert Gulyas, was in the boat with his brother-in-law, Ted Toth, 22, when their canoe toppled over. Toth helped the lad onto the overturned canoe, but was then forced to swim ashore.

Seeing only the hair of the boy, Norman Wilson of Willoughby plunged 22 feet off a bridge above and grabbed Gulyas. Unable to reach a line tossed by police and firemen, Wilson clung to the boy for 15 minutes before being swept over the falls.

Under the falls, Wilson lost Gulyas, but the lad was snatched from the river 40 feet below by three other friends, Michael Abil, 21, Jack Walker, 19, and Robert Pfinsten, 21.

Fort Ancient Hit By Fire

LEBANON, April 24 — Sparks from a passing train were believed today to have caused a fire which destroyed 50 acres of woodland on the west side of Fort Ancient State Park.

L. J. Gray, assistant supervisor of the division of state memorials, Ohio State Archaeological Society, said prompt action of the Boy Scouts of Troop 42, Dayton, and other volunteers late Saturday night kept the blaze from spreading.

An estimate of the loss was not immediately available. A similar fire swept Fort Ancient four years ago.

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

It's an odds-on-Christmas bet that De Maupassant, perhaps the greatest short-story writer of them all, wouldn't last a week as a reporter on a present-day newspaper. Let me try to tell you why.

News stories, with few exceptions, have little or no suspense because the reporter or rewrite man deliberately crams the important facts into the first sentence or, failing this, into the first paragraph.

Succeeding paragraphs usually taper off in importance, and for a very good reason—if the story has to be shortened for reasons of space, it's easier to cut "from the bottom up."

This, of course, is the exact opposite of the keep-'em-guessing treatment used by the De Maupassants and O. Henrys, and to give you an idea of the difference in the two techniques,

Catholic Cleric Secluded After Fleeing Rites

VIENNA, April 24 — Msgr. Franz Jachym, who suddenly proclaimed himself "unworthy" as he stood before the altar to be consecrated a Catholic bishop, secluded himself today in his Vienna convent home.

The assemblage of more than 1,000 in Vienna's historic St. Stephen's church looked on in bewilderment as the 40-year-old clergyman, already dressed in his bishop's vestments, rushed from the church.

Theodor Cardinal Innitzer, Roman Catholic primate of Austria, said he could not explain Jachym's behavior. Other church officials noted his distraught appearance at the consecration ceremony and expressed belief he was "overwrought."

Austrian Chancellor Leopold Figl was among those in the church at the time.

Speaking first in Latin and then in German, Jachym whispered to Cardinal Innitzer that he felt unworthy of becoming a bishop.

Jachym, looking pale, then turned to the congregation and asked "the clergy and people to pray for me."

The action was believed unprecedented in the history of the church.

The priest, only recently honored by Pope Pius XII by appointment as archbishop coadjutor of Austria, declared that he had pondered his decision for "several sleepless nights."

Cop After 'Big Shot'

WASHINGTON, April 24 — Park Police Sergeant Vincent W. Cleary is looking forward to another meeting with a certain big shot, and it isn't going to be pleasant for the latter.

The big shot sent Cleary to a hospital with contusions, all because he caught the sergeant off balance.

Big Shot is a horse, and Cleary was doing mounted patrol work when he leaned back to avoid being brushed off on a low bridge. Big Shot took advantage of the situation and the two-part company, causing Cleary's contusions.

Women Urged Practice More Christianity

CLEVELAND, April 24—Miss Marion Lela Norris of New York told some 700 Methodist women at the closing session of the triennial assembly of the Wesleyan Service Guild yesterday that they must find additional ways of demonstrating their Christian faith in their daily work.

Miss Norris, director of the guild, said that the nation's Methodist working women can make their Christian belief add to their vocational qualifications for better service to employers and all society.

The delegates, who last week attended the Women's Society of Christian Service assembly in Cleveland, also heard Mrs. George Dismukes of Westville, Okla., national program chairman.

Mrs. Dismukes said that the employed women of America could revolutionize the way people live in this country.

Newspaper Comic Strip Artists Deny Their Stuff Hurts Children

WASHINGTON, April 24—Newspaper editors and cartoonists debated whether daily newspaper comic strips build character or constitute a dose of "mental marijuana" for children.

A comic strip panel discussion featured one session of the annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors here over the weekend.

James Bennett, director of federal prisons, and Norman Isaacs, of the St. Louis Star-Times, led the criticism of comic strips.

Bennett declared that many of them contain "literary trash and little humor." He said one comic book, not a newspaper strip, influenced a youth to commit a kidnapping and write a letter almost identical with one in the book.

The director of prisons declared that if comic strips "depict anything that is real in everyday life, there is danger of imitation."

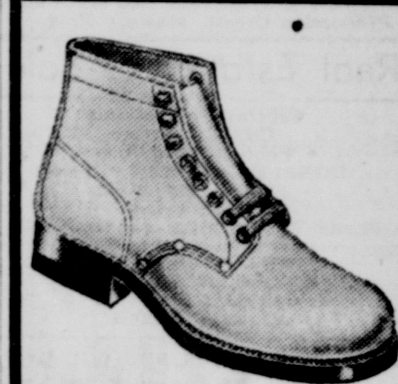

Isaacs said some of today's comics are the "first introduction of youngsters to mediocrity and we have got to do something about the mental marijuana we are feeding our kids."

The St. Louis Star-Times managing editor cited Milton Caniff, creator of "Terry and the Pirates" and "Steve Canyon," as "one cartoonist with a real sense of responsibility" but added that "unfortunately there are not many with that attitude."

Caniff carried the defense for the daily newspaper comic artists.

Caniff challenged Bennett to name a single daily newspaper strip—"I'm not talking about comic books"—that is filled with information on how to commit a crime that has caused any child to do so. Caniff said:

"The whole exploitation of daily newspaper comic strips is virtue; the hero always wins."

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were

REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

LEADERS of the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman... upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have brazenly rejected them.

They represent that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good..."

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good..."

PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT
Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation..."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

Tiger Teams Booked For Stiff Action

Tests Set For Golf, Track, Ball Crews

Circleville high school baseball, golf and track teams are scheduled for heavy action this week.

Both golf and track squads are scheduled for two contests each this week, while Tiger baseballers have one on tap.

The CHS baseball team is to play host to Wilmington Tuesday in Ted Lewis Park, seeking its third South Central Ohio League win in as many starts.

Circleville's diamond crew has so far successfully defended its league crown of three years standing by whipping Washington (6-2) and Hillsboro (13-1).

Tiger Coach John Daugherty said the Tuesday tilt may be played as a double header in an effort to make up for an earlier game between the teams which was postponed.

Circleville's track squad also will be seen in action Tuesday when it travels to Chillicothe.

THE TIGER tracksters to date have lost all three of their early matches by narrow margins. The CHS cindermen have lost twice to Lancaster (61-57 and 59½-58½) while losing again last Friday to host Westerville (61-56).

In addition, the Tiger thinies will travel to Wilmington Friday for a triangular meet against the host Hurricane crew and Hillsboro. The Friday meet will be the first test in SCOL competition for the locals, prepping them for the SCOL championship contest May 10 in Wilmington.

CHS golfers also have two matches on tap for this week.

They travel Wednesday to Columbus to meet University duffers and play host Saturday at Pickaway Country Club to Athens Bulldogs.

The Tiger golfers to date have lost one match while splitting a triangular with Lancaster against Chillicothe. The loss (15-1) was handed them by Columbus North in the season opener.

Night Softball League Chiefs Call Meeting

Circleville Night Softball League officials are to meet at 8 p. m. Monday in Hanley's restaurant to discuss the coming softball season.

Primary topic of the discussion for the team managers, sponsors and players will be a proposal that Friday nights be used by a local team in competition in an inter-city league.

A proposal was made during the last meeting of the loop that a team managed by Paul "Snow" Seymour be permitted to use the diamond every Friday night.

Seymour said that his team does not plan to enter the local league, but will enter an inter-city league to bring new teams to Circleville.

So far, the league chieftains plan for a six-team league here, with league games scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and makeup games for Friday.

The league tentatively is scheduled to begin May 8.

Medics Warn Against Head Hurts In Ring

CHICAGO, April 24 — The American Medical Association warned today that boxers risk eventual "loss of mental power and physical coordination" and require the strictest medical supervision and control for their safety.

An editorial in the current issue of The AMA Journal noted an "inherent risk attached to any activity in which the head is often the target for blows" and called for "the most stringent kind of supervision if the sport is to be conducted at all."

The Journal said a joint committee of the AMA and the National Education Association opposed boxing as an interschool activity because "there is a resultant potential of permanent injury . . . particularly to the brain, that may eventuate in a loss of mental power and physical coordination."

The committee felt that few schools have adequate teaching and medical personnel to provide maximum safety for boxers and suggested that many college athletes risked unnecessary injuries for "the sanction and implied approval" of their alma mater.

Red Wing Icers Win Coveted Stanley Cup

DETROIT, April 24—Detroit's Red Wings, specialists in coming through when the chips are down, dusted off an honored spot on their mantelpiece today for hockey's most coveted prize—the Stanley Cup.

The battling Wings twice came off a losing game last night to tie up the New York Rangers, finally exploding a sudden death goal to win, 4 to 3, one of the closest playoff finals in National Hockey League annals.

It was such a display of fierce determination that the crowd of some 13,000 fans was on its feet most of the 29 minutes of overtime.

The big silver mug, symbolizing international supremacy in the hockey world, now returns to the United States for the first time in seven years. Detroit was the last American team to claim the global championship in 1943.

A smashing 20-foot backhand shot off the stick of Pete Babando gave the Wings the game last night after New York had surged ahead with an early 2-0 lead and later held a 3-2 margin. The winning goal was set up by a perfect pass by Center George Gee.

Merchant 9's Opener Delayed

Circleville Merchants baseball team will open its 1950 season next Sunday in Ted Lewis Park against Etna.

The first season-opening game for the local hardball team was rained out Sunday.

Frank Wilkins, manager of the Merchants, said that both teams had drawn a bye in Tri-County League competition for next Sunday and the opener will be played then. Gametime for the first match will be at about 2 p. m.

Buck Sailors Win Regatta

COLUMBUS, April 24 — Ohio State won the first Ohio championship sailing regatta concluded yesterday with a last-race victory and a total 91 points.

The Buck sailors, trailing Denison by five points going into the final test, scored a resounding victory in that event to take the title. Denison wound up with 90 points. Toledo came in third.

Competition in the two-day meet, in which seven Ohio colleges participated, was conducted on the Scioto river near Columbus.

Local Thinlads Place 8th In Virginia Relays

A quartet of Circleville high school distance runners Saturday distinguished themselves in the Huntington, W. Va., Relays.

The Circleville tracksters won eighth place among 23 teams represented in the classic cinder contest while breaking one of its own school records.

In addition, the team won its heat in the medley relay with a time of 8 minutes, 26 seconds, while finishing fourth in the medley finals.

Members of the team were Ted Sims, who ran the 220-yard leg of the medley contest; Jim Starkey, 440; Tom Phillips, half mile; and Lowell Thomas, mile.

In the mile relay the local team broke existing local school records by making the distance in 3 minutes, 41 seconds. The time netted them second place in their heat behind Dayton Fairview.

Beagle Champs Are Crowned

COLUMBUS, April 24 — Grayline Saylor and Dill's Dutchman won in the 13-inch and 15-inch classes, respectively, in final judging of the International Beagle Federation Stakes here yesterday.

Grayline Saylor is owned and handled by Elmer Gray of Indianapolis. Hale Baker handled Dill's Dutchman for his owner, Joe Dill of Greenville, S. C.

Ez Charles' Future Hinges On Physicals

WASHINGTON, April 24—Ezard Charles' future as a fighter hinges today on two physical examinations ordered by the National Boxing Association, the organization which recognizes him as the world heavyweight champion.

The NBA ordered the Cincinnati fighter to go through with the checkups to see if he is fit to meet Freddie Beshore in their oft-postponed Buffalo title fight. If Charles passes the physicals the bout probably will take place in May or June.

The NBA noted that Charles has a "muscular ailment around the heart" and if either of the two examining groups finds him physically unfit he will be forcibly retired from the ring.

It was made clear by Harvey Miller, executive secretary of the group, that if an NBA-selected board does not find Charles fit the title "will be declared vacant with Charles being automatically retired."

The first check will be made within a couple of weeks and the second will be made by the New York board May 11.

Charles' title fight with Beshore was postponed twice. The first time Charles was reported to have been suffering from a rib injury. The second postponement occurred when New York State Commission doctors found that a muscle near the NBA champion's heart had been strained.

Ex-Tech Grid Coach Is Dead

ATLANTA, April 24—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for William A. "Bill" Alexander, 60, widely-known former Georgia Tech football coach, who apparently died in his sleep Sunday.

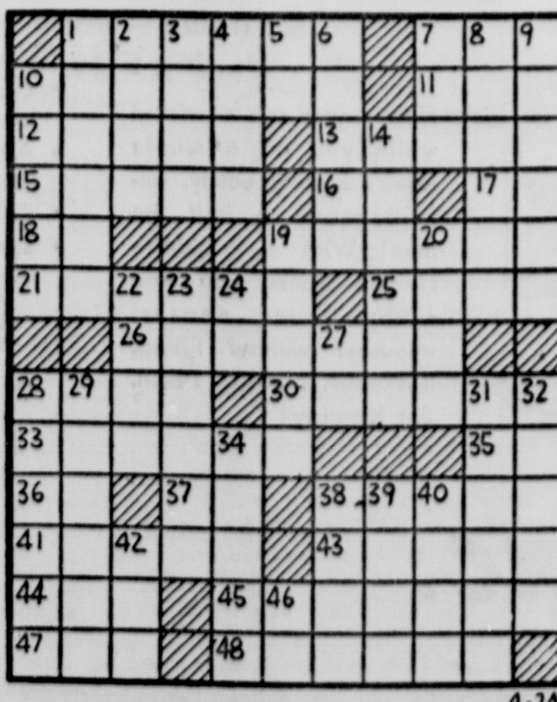

Alexander had suffered from recurrent heart attacks in recent years. The veteran grid mentor, who became the first coach to send teams to each of the four major New Year's Day bowl games, had served as athletic director at Tech since his retirement as football coach in 1944.

Cross-Bred Dairy Cow, Beef Bull Urged

Local Agent Notes Plan Of Expert

Nation's Economy Claimed Factor

How about breeding dairy cows to beef bulls?

The idea was tossed out Monday by Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent.

Indicating that he was not necessarily advocating the plan, Best said it had been proposed by O. R. Johnson, an agricultural economist at the University of Missouri who claims cross-breeding would help not only farmers but steak-hungry white collar workers as well.

The Pickaway County expert who said "it is something to think about," says that Johnson points out that farmers can expect to have acres taken out of basic crops such as corn and wheat as long as crop controls are in effect.

The problem of what to do with extra land may grow bigger as the years pass. Johnson believes this diverted land will have to produce roughage.

"Grasses and clovers are the only major crops which escape limitation even under the present Production Marketing Administration program," Johnson says. "The only way to cash meadow and pasture production is thru livestock and its products. But there are not enough grazing animals to consume the forage we are now growing."

"Meat production offers a way out and, fortunately, there is a shortage of beef and mutton. Unfortunately, there are not enough breeding animals to produce the necessary stockers and feeders. That can be remedied only by increasing herds and flocks, which takes time."

JOHNSON ADDS that cattle feeders can take more time in finishing the available supply of steers. This would make a market for grass and hay. But it would slow the production of steer beef and raise the price of meat still higher. So Johnson favors the beef-topped dairy calf. "The crossbred calf would make acceptable beef," the Missouri continues. "About half the poundage of beef produced in this country comes from dairy herds. Most consumers never know the difference when the skin's off. The crossbred calf would find ready demand until the supply of straight beef is built up."

Johnson believes that perhaps 80 percent of the cows could be bred to beef bulls without injury to dairy herds. The other 20 percent, which would represent the highest producers, would be bred to dairy bulls to raise replacement heifers.

"Sires for this service will be easier to find than the extra beef brood cows that would be necessary. Artificial insemination associations could also help by making beef semen available," he declares and adds:

"The white collar workers have had to get out of the beef market. There are about 30 million people in this class. Too many are living on $2,000 a year or less. They can't afford steaks at 70 to 90 cents a pound."

"The only immediate way to turn out extra grass into food is thru the beef-topped dairy calf. There's no reason why the 25 million acres of PMA land couldn't produce 200 pounds of beef each if we can provide calves. This cross is the quickest way to do that."

The city of Geneva, birthplace of Jean-Jacques Rousseau, has given a million French francs to help save from ruin the home of the philosopher at Montmorency near Paris.

Reds Taking Hainan

Chiang Orders Evacuation

HONG KONG, April 24—Chinese Nationalist generals and civil officials fled to Formosa today from Hainan where Communist invaders have routed 125,000 defenders and have driven them to a "Dunkirk" on the island's south shore.

Gen. Hsueh Yueh, the Nationalist commander, his staff and Governor Chan Chai-tin left for the last Nationalist stronghold after Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek ordered the immediate evacuation of Hainan.

Three ships loaded with Nationalist troops also succeeded in escaping, but a shortage of shipping is expected to leave most of the defenders to death or capture by the Communists.

The Nationalist defeat is expected to free sufficient shipping for the Communists to mount an attack on the Chusan Islands, 90 miles southeast of Shanghai, and thereby smash the Nationalist blockade of South and Central China.

The Chusans have been a valuable pivot for the Nationalists in their efforts to strangle the seaborne commerce of the Communist mainland.

ANOTHER RESULT of the fall of Hainan may be the evacuation of the Ladrone Islands southwest of the British crown colony of Hong Kong.

Travelers arriving in Hong Kong by air from Hainan said that Nationalist resistance has collapsed completely and that Communists will need only a few days to complete "mopping up" operations on the 13,500-square mile island.

A statement by the Nationalist Central News Agency said the defenders of Hainan mainly were battle-worn troops who had suffered earlier defeats on the Chinese mainland.

The statement emphasized that the forces on Hainan are not comparable in training or equipment with the new army (Continued on Page Two)

Senate Leaders Drive For OK Of Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, April 24—Senate leaders—with a possible assist from Russia—drive this week for a vote on the $3.372 billion foreign aid bill.

Sen. McMahon, (D) Conn., chairman of the Congressional Atomic Committee, predicted the Senate will reject attempts to trim Marshall Plan funds in the measure.

McMahon, also a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, declared that "events of the last few weeks show that this is not time to discontinue or cripple the Cold War program. He said:

"The need for the Marshall program is as great today as it was on the day we started the program. When we look at what has happened since the last appropriation was made to say nothing of events of the last few weeks, we can see that this is no time to reduce aid to our allies."

McMahon referred to Russia's action in shooting down an unarmed U. S. Navy plane over the Baltic, the threatened march of Communist youths on Berlin and other increased Cold War tensions.

Senate Armed Services Chairman Tydings, (D) Md., indicated he thought debate on the bill will bring a thorough floor airing of the Cold War's status. He said new tensions will "warm" the debate.

Other problems—such as the trend of business, labor issues, nationwide gambling and senatorial investigations of Communist infiltration into government—were placed in a secondary category to that of the Cold War.

The publishers reported business conditions as good in all parts of the country. They expressed confidence they could solve their own problems such as the decline in newsprint production and the rising costs of putting out newspapers.

Roy Roberts, president and general manager of The Kansas City Star, said he "sincerely hoped" the nation could avoid becoming embroiled in another war. He said the responsibility of newspapers today is even greater than it was during the last war.

THE FIRST of thirteen full-scale replicas of the Liberty Bell is lifted out of the hold of the Excalibur, arriving at New York from Anney, France. Fifty-two reproductions of the famous bell will be used to highlight the U. S. Treasury Department's next bond drive. The first shipment will be distributed to the 13 original states.

Truman Speech To Deny Reds Gaining In America

WASHINGTON, April 24—President Truman will deny flatly tonight that the administration has failed to stop Communist invasion of the State Department and other government agencies.

A White House source said that the chief executive will not "call any names," but most specifically will give the reply direct to the GOP charges of Communism in government.

Mr. Truman will refute the accusations in a nationwide radio broadcast to be made before the 30th annual dinner of the Federal Bar Association in Washington.

It will be broadcast by the NBC and ABC networks at 10 p. m.

The speech marks the first time that the President in open forum—with the exception of his Key West remarks—has answered the charges leveled by Sen. Joe McCarthy, (R) Wis., and others on Capitol Hill.

White House aides said the address will be a "major speech" and that in addition to the President's rebuttal of the Red charges, the talk will include:

1. Steps taken to rebuild free nations abroad.
2. The military assistance program abroad.
3. Efforts taken to combat Communism within the U. S.

One aide said that while he did not want "to say that (the speech) is a sensation, it is important." He added:

"IT WILL embrace efforts of the American government to combat Communism with special emphasis on the loyalty program. 'Communism is not an impor-

Mishaps Cut Cop Force In Half

WILLOUGHBY, April 24—The police department in nearby Eastlake Village is really up against it.

Three patrolmen, one half of the force, are accident victims and the village's only police cruiser is smashed. Two policemen, Arthur Kerchgasser, 43, and John Tomlinson, 37, were sent to a hospital in East Cleveland Saturday after their car smashed into a tree.

Patrolman John Meeker is recovering from a fractured arm received in an accident some time ago.

The men, en route to repair a bridge, were riding on a "go-devil" which collided with the train on a curve in the tunnel.

The train had been routed on an auxiliary track while repairs were being made.

The dead were identified as Henry Houchins of Blue Stone, W. Va., foreman of the crew; J. V. Arthur of Bluefield, W. Va.; H. I. Rickman of St. Paul, Va.; T. J. Cochran of Maxwell, Va.; and W. E. Lambert of Ironton. T. J. Vowles of Bluefield was injured seriously.

10,000 Men Start Phone Walkout

General Strike Due Wednesday

NEW YORK, April 24—A strike order for ten thousand key telephone installation men went into effect at 6 a. m. today preceding a general walkout of 240,000 telephone workers set for Wednesday.

The nationwide strike of installation personnel was not expected to affect telephone communications because the idle workers do not plan picketing which would prevent employees in phone exchanges from reporting for work.

Orders for the installers strike were issued here early today by Ernest Weaver, president of division six of the CIO Communications Workers of America.

Weaver acted as federal mediators in sessions extending beyond midnight failed to win a settlement of the union's dispute with the Western Electric Co.

Weaver said, "there will be no picketing until and unless the general strike starts Wednesday. We are calling the strike because of the company's decision to fire 104 men at South Bend, Ind."

A spokesman for the company denied that the men are being fired.

The dispute started when four men in South Bend refused to walk a mile and a half through a muddy field to install telephone equipment in a television tower.

SUBSEQUENT to this incident 100 of their co-workers walked off the job in sympathy, and the union has demanded that the workers be paid in full since March 27.

A company spokesman said: "Western Electric wanted this handled as a grievance matter as provided for in the contract, the union insisted on arbitration. The position of the men is totally invalid and even their own union has ordered them back to work."

"Nobody has been fired but letters were sent to the men last Thursday saying that if they don't report to work this morning they will be presumed to have resigned."

5 N&W Workers Killed In West Virginia Tunnel

WELCH, W. Va., April 24—Five railroad workmen were killed near here today when they were hit by a Norfolk and Western Railway passenger train in a tunnel.

The men, en route to repair a bridge, were riding on a "go-devil" which collided with the train on a curve in the tunnel.

The train had been routed on an auxiliary track while repairs were being made.

The dead were identified as Henry Houchins of Blue Stone, W. Va., foreman of the crew; J. V. Arthur of Bluefield, W. Va.; H. I. Rickman of St. Paul, Va.; T. J. Cochran of Maxwell, Va.; and W. E. Lambert of Ironton. T. J. Vowles of Bluefield was injured seriously.

Supporters of the proposal to be explained by Coy contend that it is clearly constitutional while some senators believe there is some question about the bill offered by McGrath.

35 Bodies Recovered

Military Plane Found On Mount

YOKOHAMA, April 24—U. S. Army crews prepared today to bring down from a lofty Japanese mountainside the bodies of 35 Americans killed when a C-54 military transport crashed in flames while nearing Tokyo on a flight from Manila.

Investigators sought, meanwhile, to learn the cause of the tragedy which occurred late Friday night.

The difficult task of identifying the mangled bodies of 27 passengers and eight crewmen on the 4,600-foot level of craggy Mount Hirugatake was proceeding on the crash site from which all unofficial observers were barred.

Army authorities hoped to bring the bodies of 30 men, three women and two teen-agers down from the mountain and into Yokohama by tonight.

Among the dead were members of a trade mission from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's occupation headquarters which had just concluded a Japanese-Philippine barter agreement in Manila. The mission was headed by Frank E. Pickelle, 40, of Chicago; and included also James G. Torrens, 43, of Boston; Maj. Bernard Evans, 40, Enderlin, N. D.; and Mrs. Theresa Krosner, 41, North Grafton, Mass.

Other victims included Maj. Mary D. Schureman; Mrs. Alice Krueger; the latter's husband, (Continued on Page Two)

Bingo Games Ordered Shut

NEWPORT, Ky., April 24—Police raided two bingo establishments and a night club yesterday in the wake of an order by Police Chief George Gugel calling for a crackdown on gambling.

The Dog Patch night club was raided early yesterday. Police arrested 12 persons and seized a truckload of gaming equipment. The bingo games, in progress in the Elks Lodge and the Knights of Columbus Hall, were ordered shut down.

Henry D. Bradley, publisher of The St. Joseph, Mo., News-Press and St. Joseph Gazette, said, "some of the boys" (gamblers) tried to get started in his city of 85,000 population but failed.

Bradley said that Dean Acheson's statement that he could not turn his back on Alger Hiss was a "distinct shock" to his community. He said he hoped this was a slip of the tongue. He said some Westerners think Senator McCarthy has talked rather strongly without proving his charges of disloyalty any too well.

Philip D. Adler, publisher of The Davenport (Iowa) Democrat, said the Communist situation is "a far cry" in his part of the Middle West where "we are interested in corn."

STRETCH DRIVE AHEAD

Rhodes And DiSalle Trying Catch Ebright, Ferguson

COLUMBUS, April 24—Ohio's pre-primary campaign entered the home stretch today with Mayor James Rhodes and Michael DiSalle still trying desperately to catch Don Ebright and Joe Ferguson.

The races for the Republican nomination for governor and the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate still captured the bulk of attention as the slow-moving campaign entered its final full week before the balloting a week from tomorrow. And Ebright and Ferguson remained the favorites.

Secretary of State Charles E. Sweeney, who is unopposed for renomination, is sticking to his prediction of a light vote of around 800,000, split about evenly between the two parties.

In the last off-year elections, there were 359,799 Democrats and 392,072 Republicans in 1946 and 355,196 Democrats and 392,035 Republicans in 1942—the last two elections in non-presidential years.

EBRIGHT, now completing his sixth two-year term as state treasurer, claimed this weekend that he would carry "a substantial plurality in every county of the state." He carries his campaign this week into Athens, Mahoning, Summit and Cuyahoga Counties.

Rhodes, however, has been getting the headlines and undoubtedly has gained considerable ground on Ebright since the start of the campaign. The question is just as it has been—the Columbus mayor overtake Ebright before the primary?

Rhodes' latest blast at the Democratic administration of Governor Lausche—who has only nominal opposition for renomination—charged that liquor licenses are still being issued despite an announced "freeze."

Like Ebright, Rhodes will spend most of the final week in vote-rich Cleveland and Northeastern Ohio. But before starting on his last big swing he charged:

"If you know the right people, the governor and the liquor dealers (Continued on Page Two) modernized, with thousands of dollars worth of new equipment. Most costly of the new equipment which was destroyed was a $3,000 hammermill, he said.

Circleville's rural unit was aided in protecting surrounding buildings by departments from New Holland, Clarksburg, Mt. Sterling and Williamsport. The units drained several cisterns surrounding the building.
Nearly 3,500 bushels of corn also were lost in the blaze. Dunlap said the corn had been stored in one of the two cement silos which were part of the mill.
The silo full of corn toppled to the ground shortly before the bottom stories of the building caved in, cascading corn and cement blocks onto a railroad spur behind the plant. The empty silo remained standing, although Dunlap said Monday he believed it would have to be torn down also.

VANMETER-HULSE of near Atlanta reportedly discovered the blaze and alerted the fire departments.
Meanwhile, shortly after the discovery, George Skinner, George Donohoe and Leonard and Ray Reisinger dashed into the building to save a tractor and a gasoline power unit. The intense heat halted further salvage attempts.
Dunlap stated that nearly $7,000 worth of feed also was lost in the fire. Workmen hastily loaded one truck with feed on the wind side of the fire.
The owner stated that the first feed and grain mill had been erected on the site in 1897 by Grant Campbell. Two other mills have been destroyed by fire on the same site since then, Dunlap added.
Dunlap said Monday he plans to build another mill soon on the same site.
"We'll try to put up a fire-resistant mill this time," the owner said. "When the other mill was built no one knew much about fireproofing."
Pickaway County lawmen and several state highway patrol units were summoned to assist in handling a severe traffic problem, caused when passing motorists flocked to the scene to witness the blaze.

Driver Fined After Mishap

Elmer Hill, 47, of 126 South Pickaway street, was fined $75 and costs Monday in the court of Mayor Thurman I. Miller for leaving the scene of an accident.
Officer Rod List said the Hill car struck a car owned by Harold Clifton. The car was parked in front of Clifton's home at 307 South Court street when the Hill auto struck it at about 3:45 a. m. Sunday, List said.

Lawsuit Opens To Participate In State Fund

A lawsuit brought by Joseph Wilson against the Industrial Commission of Ohio was being heard before a jury in Pickaway County common pleas court Monday.
Wilson seeks to participate in the state industrial compensation program, claiming an injury while working for a local firm. 3 Daytonians Injured Here In Car Mishap

Richards said the Mayo auto skidded nearly 180 feet before it crashed into the electric pole to the right of the highway.
The driver suffered head injuries, Richards said, while Mable Mayo, 19, the driver's sister, suffered shock and Arnold Haney, 18, another passenger, suffered head injuries.

Richards said the impact of the car shattered the utilities pole near its base.

Two Women Slugged After Church Dance

CLEVELAND, April 24 — Two young Cleveland women were slugged early today by two youths who had followed them from a dance at St. Hyacinth's Catholic church on Cleveland's east side.

One of the youths was arrested a few minutes later by police.

The two women, Miss Elinore Skory, 24, and Miss Stella Apanasewicz, 29, had witnessed a minor traffic accident while walking home and awoke Ben Goszowt, 57, to tell him about it. While they were talking to Goszowt, the two thugs burst into the house and struck Miss Skory in the face and pushed Miss Apanasewicz. Goszowt also was slugged.

Police arrived after Goszowt's wife had called them and one of the youths, who had returned to the house, was captured in a second floor bedroom.

Channel Swimming Veteran Gives Advice On Dover-To-France Trip

LONDON, April 24—The 58-year-old voice of experience in English Channel swimming has laid down some rules for America's entries in competition—eat plenty of meat and ignore people who call you a "lunatic."

Dr. George Basil Brewster, who will make his 14th attempt to swim the 21 miles of frigid choppy sea from England to France this year, offered the advice to, among others, Steve Wozniak, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Wozniak, billing himself as the "world's swimming champion," is the latest entry in the cross channel free-for-all to be sponsored by The London Daily Mail. The newspaper will give $2,800 each to the first man and woman to swim the channel and $700 to every person who makes it.

Altogether, about 100 persons have announced they want to challenge the channel this year, either in the Daily Mail race or on their own.

About the "lunatic" jibes, Dr. Brewster says he can speak with sad personal experience, that one reason his wife had left him was his devotion to the channel. "She thought I was mad," Brewster said, "to keep up swimming at my age."

Brewster said channel swimmers need plenty of meat to provide the energy for the gruelling swim, which might last 24 hours or more. He said he figured that the channel swimmer uses up 500 calories an hour—four days' supply.

The doctor, a general practitioner, trains practically the year 'round for his perennial onslaughts on the channel.

Since January, with the waters no warmer than 48 degrees, Brewster has been taking weekly dips in the channel off Dover. He started with 20 minutes per practice swim and will work up to about seven or eight hours before he tries it all the way across.

The closest Brewster has come thus far is about five miles from the French coast on the trip from Dover.

But, Brewster insisted, this may be the year.

ITEMS IT PAYS TO SAVE

FRANKLIN D. Roosevelt never discarded any written document, says Karl Schriftgiesser, writing in the New York Times Magazine. He kept Christmas cards, birthday greetings, old bills and check stubs, baseball passes and everything else conceivable. Now this mass of trivialities, mingled with many papers of immense historic value, is in the Roosevelt library at Hyde Park, N. Y., to be sorted over by the trained employees of the National Archives.

If the practically impossible happened and this collection were ever put up for sale, vast sums could be realized. Roosevelt's autograph and items owned by him, even the most insignificant, would each command a price ranging from fair to high, according to the historic value of the piece.

This is true for all noted figures. When Rudyard Kipling was living in Vermont, he had great trouble in balancing his checkbook. His checks for milk and other current bills were not cashed, but kept and sold, the autograph commanding much higher prices than the face value of the check.

Herein lies a hint for those about to be famous. Keep your minor items and cash in on them later. Of course your neat wife may be horrified. She will probably say, "What do you want to keep that for? Do you think you are going to be famous?" Well, who knows?

But if all of us kept all the pieces of paper which ought to be destroyed, there'd be no living in the houses of any of us. It would be a paper world.

TRAFFIC LAW BREAKERS

HOW MANY traffic violators are there? If Foster M. Kunz of the Federal Bureau of Investigation is right, the figures are startling. Speaking at the convention of the Greater New York Safety Council, he said that in one year twelve million drivers were arraigned for breach of traffic rules. That would be one out of every four.

These statistics may seem exaggerated, but on some Sundays it can be believed that they are sound to the last zero. It does sometimes seem that all these lawbreakers are out on the road at once.

We find it hard to understand why human beings go to sleep on railroad tracks.

Any married couple, with a couple of youngsters, knows that marriage is a racket.

NEW YORK—On Saturday night, the outlandish truth to New York; they come on buses from New Jersey and trains and highways from Westchester and Connecticut and they take over the saloons, the movies, the theaters, for a brief few hours before their furlough from sub-urbanity ends.

However, the dispossessed New Yorker must go somewhere, do something, too. So the regular in Lindy's window, swamped by the influx of tourists, finds his way to a poker game in a Seventh avenue hotel.

The front-pew regular in El Morocco, temporarily inundated by the tide of visiting Long Islanders, throws a party at home. The Greenwich Villager, swept aside by the rush of brash ones hunting for life on Eighth street, drifts morosely into somebody's attic and discusses Picasso or whither sex.

The prizefight fan—the regular, the student of the game, the double-dyed cigar-smoking expert—hauls himself over to Ridgewood Grove in Brooklyn for Saturday night's card.

They call the Grove the cradle of champions, which is not stretching the truth too much, but when you walk into it, after having picked your way carefully under the L tracks and past the trolley terminal for a few blocks, it seems a smoky and uncomfortable cradle. They can fit a couple of thousand men and women into the place, and they have done just that, this night you make your visit. The second of the four-round preliminaries is on as you find your way to your funeral-parlor chair at ringside.

A couple of young middleweights are tugging and hauling at each other in the ancient ring, and the crowd is paying them only mild attention. There is the slap and thud of gloves on sweating torsos, and there are wild swings by the dozen, but this is a ringwise audience.

THE CROWD WAITS. It has come to see a young East Sider named Micelli tonight, a knockout artist (as they say) on his way up. The crowd tolerates the preliminaries. "Getcha red hot!" a scholarly hotdog vendor cries. Beer salesmen, dispensers of the

These Days

Americans are accustomed to a constantly rising standard of living. Two yardsticks may be used to measure the standard of living:

1. The quantity of goods and services available for the earned dollar;
2. The number of hours of work that is required to purchase a unit of any commodity; say a loaf of bread, a shirt, a pair of shoes, a bottle of milk, etc.

Neither of these yardsticks has much to do with quality, but that has been assumed. Generally speaking, as the standard of living improved, the quality of goods was improved because of completion. During the war, both the quantity and quality of goods declined. This was to have been expected and was accepted with good grace. It was a sacrifice the people made for the war. For example, they were served the category of beef known as commercial, suitable for sausages, etc., but not for the private kitchen. And they took it.

However, after the war, prices continued high. In fact, wages, both immediate and postponed, rose. So, prices rose. (Postponed wages include pensions and social benefits which are not immediately paid to the worker but are loaded on to the price.)

The public had had a bad market for buying during the war period. They were short of all sorts of necessities as well as luxuries, and buying became wild for a time and then a resistance set in. The manufacturers met that by new models, new gadgets, new designs, but not always with the same or improved quality. In fact, there is a suspicion that in actual quality, one is not getting his money's worth.

Now, something new is happening. Stimulated by ECA, with the hope of producing more dollars, all sorts of alien-made products are being poured into this country. Watches, ceramics and woolens are the first to feel the impact, but it will hit all consumer goods industries. I saw an advertisement recently of British-made lawnmowers.

This is not a simple question that takes a yes or no answer. We cannot go on subsidizing countries and yet, if we are not to subsidize them, they must sell goods where they can. If they sell too much in our market, they will throw some of our industries into distress and lots of workers out of jobs.

Even if we undertake to aid our wards in the most friendly and encouraging manner to sell their wares in our markets, this will sooner or later become a political problem in this country and more opposition is to be expected from the labor unions than from businessmen. The ITO, which is now popular with sectors of labor, will surely become a plague to this country politically when the effects of it are clear.

The new census, according to officials in charge, is expected to reveal that there are more women in the United States than men. This will surprise no city dweller who watches the crowds on the sidewalks, or who has to stand in line at bank or post office.

Life is impeded by people who want the benefits without the accompanying obligations.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

JENNY'S BLUE eyes softened. Dick was desperately unhappy, anyone could see that. But why?

"What happened this morning?" She ignored his belligerence.

"Nothing. Elsa made some swell waffles. She'll never cook like you do," he said in unconscious praise, "but these were good. Pete says I made a pig of myself, but Elsa said I could have all I wanted. And all the butter and syrup, too."

Jenny bit back the remark that Pete was far more tactful. "He said that this morning?"

"No, he didn't say anything. He's always a grouch in the morning, but he didn't open his mouth."

Jenny started to ask "Then why?" but decided against it. She shifted her line of inquiry. "How was school today?"

"Okay. I got an A in algebra, and a B plus in history. I'm not so hot in English, though."

"You mean, you failed?"

"No." He looked at her briefly. "I never fail anything."

"Did you have a fight with one of your pals?"

"Nope." His eyes were down again. He was eating slowly now, and she had the feeling he was closing the door against her.

She said, in desperation, "It's a good thing your father wasn't home for dinner tonight, or he'd be worried sick. Elsa—"

He turned toward her with a jerk. "Listen!" he said. "He's not worrying about me these days, he's got other things to think about. I'm fed up with him and his—his—"

The word eluded him, but he did not stop. An angry color swept up under his skin. "I saw him sitting there with your sister, having a drink and looking at her like—like—"

"My sister?" Jenny echoed, with a distinct shock. Knowing in advance what he was going to say.

"Yeah, your sister Diane. At Si's Tavern. And he told Elsa he was coming home for dinner tonight, and now you say he never showed up!"

It took a little time, but Jenny finally got the story from him of how, under cover of his casual attitude, he had been worrying for several weeks about his father's absences. Of how, to make money for Christmas, he had engaged to remove the crates and cartons from the back of Si's Tavern for the sum of a dollar a week. It never took him long, and he did it on his way home from the school bus every day. Of how today he had seen his father and Diane together, and it had made him feel sick. He had waited around and then followed them as they left. He had heard them discuss the possibility of going on in Pete's car—to dinner at an out-of-town restaurant.

"I guess that's when I got fed up," he said.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The omnibus appropriation bill has been cut by over a billion and a half but it still doesn't look like many missed the bus.

Even at $29 billion, this omnibus bill provides the transportation on which everybody expects to ride back to office.

Claude Pepper says he got better than a billion dollars for his state in recent years and hopes to do better if reelected.

That may explain why Mr. Truman and Mayor O'Dwyer have been spending so much time in Florida. . . trying to get the hang of Claude's operation.

But you multiply Claude by 48 states with two senators each and you can see we're going to need bigger omnibus bills and larger omnibusses leaving Washington with space for carrying the largesse.

The congressmen tried to increase their own salaries under the bill, but were ruled "out of order." They were standing in the wrong line—that's another bus.

When Judge Charles Ramsate was sitting on the bench in night court recently a fugitive from Alcoholics Anonymous was dragged before him charged with drunk and disorderly conduct. Judge Ramsate looked over the prisoner's record that had been placed before him, started visibly and said, "Do you realize that this is the seventh time you have been before this court on the same charge in the last six months?" The prisoner straightened momentarily, wiped a tear from his bleary eye, and pleaded, "Gee whiz, Your Honor, nobody's perfect."

Abel Green tells about the vaudevillian who boasted to an agent, "My name is Projecto, and I can fly. Just let me show you my act." The blase agent consented to go with him to an empty theatre nearby. True to his word, the actor promptly took off from the state, spiraled to the ceiling, circled the auditorium a couple of times, and zoomed down in a perfect glide. The agent yawned and said, "So you can imitate birds. What else can you do?"

Betty Jo Minshall Wed In Saturday Rites Read In Church Near Dayton

Daytonian Is Groom

Tapers in seven branched candelabra lighted the altar of Shiloh Congregational church near Dayton Saturday afternoon when Miss Betty Jo Minshall became the bride of Daniel Martin Garst.

The altar cross, before which the double ring ceremony took place, was flanked by single lighted tapers. Palms and tall vases of white flowers, lilies, snapdragons, carnations and gladioli formed the background for the marriage service performed by the Rev. Lee Meadows.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lutz Minshall of Pickaway Township, was escorted to the altar by her father.

Her marquisette gown was fashioned with a tight bodice inset with lace, and a very full bouffant skirt extending into a circular train. Tiny buttons formed a row down the front of the bodice which had a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves coming to points over the hands. Her finger tip veil was of illusion and held in place by a Juliette cap made of white lilies.

She carried a white Bible arrayed with three white camellias tied with satin streamers in which white flowers-of-love had been knotted.

Maid-of-honor was Miss Betty Ann Parish of Columbus. Charles Lee of Dayton was best man for the bridegroom, who is the son of Mrs. Wilson Browning of Englewood and the late Mr. Clifford Garst. Ushers were Tom Myers of Dayton and Richard Van Winkle of Newark.

Miss Virginia Lentz of Columbus, soloist, sang three numbers preceding the ceremony.

Mrs. Minshall greeted her guests at the reception held in the church social rooms in a Navy blue suit. Her accessories were navy blue and yellow. Her corsage was made of yellow roses. Mrs. Browning wore navy blue also with a corsage of deep pink roses.

Reception hostesses were all members of Phi Mu sorority.

They were Miss Florence Pymer of Cincinnati, Miss Nathalie Cerame of Long Island, Miss Mary Jo Daugherty of Piqua and Miss Sue Hummon of Wooster.

The new Mrs. Garst is a graduate of Salt Creek high school and of Ohio State university. She is employed in Dayton.

Mr. Garst, also a graduate of Ohio State university, is a member of Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. He is employed by a manufacturing firm in Tipp City.

The couple left immediately following the ceremony for a trip in the East. When they return they will live in the Dayton community.

Wedding guests from Pickaway County included Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Strous, Mrs. Dwight Vector, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Enoch from the Salt Creek community; Mr. and Mrs. William Minshall and Miss Kathryn

GOAL OF $3,000 SOUGHT

Cancer Society Opening Finance Drive In County

A goal of $3,000 has been set as Pickaway County's quota in the 1950 campaign of the American Cancer Society.

The campaign got underway here Monday, will continue through May 20.

Co-chairman for this year's drive locally are Clarence Rushing, who has guided the cancer society's activities here for the last few years, and Mrs. Curtis Wertman of 123 Seyfert Avenue.

Headquarters for the society locally will be in the basement of the Moose Lodge, 144 East Main street.

A call was issued Monday by Mrs. Wertman for the assistance of Boy and Girl Scouts and all local civic clubs.

Rushing said that half of all local monies received in the local drive will remain in Pickaway County. Twenty-five percent will go to the state organization and the other 25 percent will go to national research.

Locally, he said, funds can be used in treatment of needy cases. He explained:

"THE SOCIETY cannot be used to pay doctor bills, but may provide biopsy examinations, treatment, medicine and nursing care."

The co-chairman declared that cancer still is not fully understood by the medical profession. He stressed that continual research is required to slash the high death rate among men, women and children.

He declared that "much progress has been made, but physicians could have saved more than a third of the 200,000 cancer victims in America last year if the patients had sought medical attention earlier. Knowledge of cancer symptoms could have brought life to thousands. We are urging full cooperation in this campaign to aid the spread of life-giving truth."

With the start of the local campaign, Circleville Mayor Thurman I. Miller issued the following proclamation:

"Whereas: The fearsome disease, cancer, represents a serious community problem in Circleville as it affects on the average one of every two families in our city;

"Whereas: It is known measures can be taken to cut down the present cancer death-rate, easing the tragedy for individuals and lightening the community burden of the great social and economic losses resulting from this high death rate;

"Whereas: Cancer Control, to be effective, must be the vital concern of each and every one of us, therefore, I, Thurman I. Miller, mayor of the city of Circleville hereby proclaim the period April 24 to May 20 as Cancer Control Month and request that the citizens of this city observe it as such.

"I request that all individuals—for the protection of themselves and their loved ones—learn the essential facts about this disease. I further request that all individuals, institutions, businesses, and organizations support, cooperate with and assist the American Cancer Society in the 1950 Cancer Crusade."

Burns Fatal

COLUMBUS, April 24—Funeral services will be conducted Tuesday for 67-year-old Mrs. Bertha Tyler of Pataskala, who died yesterday in a Columbus hospital of burns she suffered while burning trash at her home Tuesday.

An estimate of the loss was not immediately available. A similar fire swept Fort Ancient four years ago.

Fort Ancient Hit By Fire

LEBANON, April 24—Sparks from a passing train were believed today to have caused a fire which destroyed 50 acres of woodland on the west side of Fort Ancient State Park.

L. J. Gray, assistant supervisor of the division of state memorials, Ohio State Archaeological Society, said prompt action of the Boy Scouts of Troop 42, Dayton, and other volunteers late Saturday night kept the blaze from spreading.

An estimate of the loss was not immediately available. A similar fire swept Fort Ancient four years ago.

Elinor Williams'

Teen Tips

"Nothing to do except look at television"—that's the sad plight of a high school freshman, a girl, who wrote to us recently. Amazing! Nothing at all to do in this "big, wide, wonderful world" except watch television!

"I'm not allowed to have dates yet," she continues, "so the weekends are dull and I never know what to do with myself, especially if I've seen the movie in our town. What would you suggest?"

There are enough things to do, learn and enjoy to fill a tremendous library full of big, fat volumes. But here—in a general list—are some of the things that should be included in every high school girl's and boy's well-balanced life. . . without neglecting school work and home duties which always come first.

Earn some of your money and keep a budget. You'll be surprised how much farther you can make it go with a little thought.

Join at least two of the school organizations that interest you most and attend the meetings regularly so you can take an active part, get acquainted with more girls and boys and learn to get along with them.

Find a hobby. . . something that you enjoy doing, making or learning. This is fun, makes you and your life more interesting and the fact that you learn to excel in it will give you confidence.

Learn to do the things that make school years complete. . . dancing, a sport or two that you like best or some sort of skill such as knitting or painting if you're a girl or model-building if you're a boy. You'll be glad later. . .

Play a musical instrument, if you love music. Read good books (real literature); your English teacher will gladly give you a list of books that are fun to read as well as worthwhile.

Any more suggestions, teenagers?

English Find Milk Supply Now Surplus

WASHINGTON, April 24—The Agriculture Department reports that England expects a milk surplus of 10 million gallons a month above what is needed for consumption.

English dairymen are establishing new monthly records, the department says. The total production of milk in England and Wales during March is expected to be around 138 million gallons. Fluid consumption should be about 117 million gallons.

Another factor in the surplus is that the English are drinking less milk. Consumption has been on the down-grade for the last several months, the figures show. Non-priority users in England consume about two and a half pints a week.

Some of the methods proposed to ease the surplus problem include a "drink more milk" campaign, reduce milk prices, or allow farmers to separate a portion of the milk they produce.

Plane, Auto Fail Iturbi

WASHINGTON, April 24—Concert Pianist Jose Iturbi will keep an engagement in Washington tonight, but a little thing like a forced airplane landing washed out one in Baltimore last night.

Iturbi's scheduled concert in Baltimore was postponed until Tuesday after the plane in which he was flying from Syracuse got lost and circled for an hour before it ran out of gas and landed in a Maryland corn field. No one was hurt, but the automobile transportation with which Iturbi completed his trip to Baltimore just couldn't make the concert time.

Pitching Horseshoes

By BILLY ROSE

It's an odds-on-Christmas bet that De Maupassant, perhaps the greatest short-story writer of them all, wouldn't last a week as a reporter on a present-day newspaper. Let me try to tell you why.

News stories, with few exceptions, have little or no suspense because the reporter or rewrite man deliberately crams the important facts into the first sentence or, failing this, into the first paragraph.

Succeeding paragraphs usually taper off in importance, and for a very good reason—if the story has to be shortened for reasons of space, it's easier to cut "from the bottom up."

This, of course, is the exact opposite of the keep-'em-guessing treatment used by the De Maupassants and O. Henrys, and to give you an idea of the difference in the two techniques,

Catholic Cleric Secluded After Fleeing Rites

VIENNA, April 24 — Msgr. Franz Jachym, who suddenly proclaimed himself "unworthy" as he stood before the altar to be consecrated a Catholic bishop, secluded himself today in his Vienna convent home.

The assemblage of more than 1,000 in Vienna's historic St. Stephen's church looked on in bewilderment as the 40-year-old clergyman, already dressed in his bishop's vestments, rushed from the church.

Theodor Cardinal Innitzer, Roman Catholic primate of Austria, said he could not explain Jachym's behaviour. Other church officials noted his distraught appearance at the consecration ceremony and expressed belief he was "overwrought."

Austrian Chancellor Leopold Figl was among those in the church at the time.

Speaking first in Latin and then in German, Jachym whispered to Cardinal Innitzer that he felt unworthy of becoming a bishop.

Jachym, looking pale, then turned to the congregation and asked "the clergy and people to pray for me."

The action was believed unprecedented in the history of the church.

The priest, only recently honored by Pope Pius XII by appointment as archbishop coadjutor of Austria, declared that he had pondered his decision for "several sleepless nights."

Cop After 'Big Shot'

WASHINGTON, April 24 — Park Police Sergeant Vincent W. Cleary is looking forward to another meeting with a certain big shot, and it isn't going to be pleasant for the latter.

The big shot sent Cleary to a hospital with contusions, all because he caught the sergeant off balance.

Big Shot is a horse, and Cleary was doing mounted patrol work when he leaned back to avoid being brushed off on a low bridge. Big Shot took advantage of the situation and the two parted company, causing Cleary's contusions.

let me take a recent news story which appeared in a Midwestern paper and write it as if it were a piece of fiction.

One Saturday afternoon not long ago, a night watchman named Stan Mikalowsky was window-shopping with his five-year-old daughter, Wanda, and as they passed a toy shop the child pointed excitedly to a doll nearly as big as she was. It had real hair, eyes that moved and a soft rubber skin which looked almost human.

The figure on the price tag was only a dollar less than the watchman's weekly pay check, and his first impulse was to walk away, but when the youngster refused to budget he shrugged and led her into the store.

WHEN STAN got home and unwrapped the doll, his wife was furious.

"We owe the butcher for three weeks and we're ten dollars short on the room rent," she said, "so you got to blow in a week's pay for a toy."

"What's the difference?" said the night watchman. "Doll or no doll, we're always behind. For once, let the kid have something she wants."

One word led to many others and finally, while Wanda was in the bedroom playing with the doll, Stan put on his hat and stomped out of the house.

"Mrs. Mikalowsky fed the child and put her to bed with the doll next to her and then, worried about Stan, decided to go looking for him at the corner bar and make up with him."

To keep his supper warm, she left the gas stove on, and in her haste threw her apron over the back of a chair in such a way that one of the string landed close to a burner.

Fifteen minutes later when the Mikalowskys came rushing out of the bar, their frame house was in flames, and firemen had to forcibly restrain the father from rushing in to save his daughter.

"You wouldn't be any use in there," a cop told him. "Don't worry, they'll get her out."

Firemen Joe Miller, himself a father, climbed a ladder to the bedroom window, and the crowd hushed as he disappeared into the smoke. A few minutes later, coughing and blinking, he climbed down, a blanket-wrapped bundle in his arms.

To illustrate the difference between the two techniques of telling: The local newspaper headlined its story of the fire with the line which a De Maupassant would undoubtedly have saved for the finish—
"Firemen Rescues Life-Size Doll as Child Dies in Flames."

Women Urged Practice More Christianity

CLEVELAND, April 24—Miss Marion Lela Norris of New York told some 700 Methodist women at the closing session of the triennial assembly of the Wesleyan Service Guild yesterday that they must find additional ways of demonstrating their Christian faith in their daily work.

Miss Norris, director of the guild, said that the nation's Methodist working women can make their Christian belief add to their vocational qualifications for better service to employers and all society.

The delegates, who last week attended the Women's Society of Christian Service assembly in Cleveland, also heard Mrs. George Dismukes of Westville, Okla., national program chairman.

Mrs. Dismukes said that the employed women of America could revolutionize the way people in this country live.

Newspaper Comic Strip Artists Deny Their Stuff Hurts Children

WASHINGTON, April 24—Newspaper editors and cartoonists debated whether daily newspaper comic strips build character or constitute a dose of "mental marijuana" for children.

A comic strip panel discussion featured one session of the annual convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors here over the weekend.

James Bennett, director of federal prisons, and Norman Isaacs, of the St. Louis Star-Times, led the criticism of comic strips. Bennett declared that many of them contain "literary trash and little humor." He said one comic book, not a newspaper strip, influenced a youth to commit a kidnapping and write a letter almost identical with one in the book.

The director of prisons declared that if comic strips "depict anything that is real in everyday life, there is danger of imitation."

Isaacs said some of today's comics are the "first introduction of youngsters to mediocrity and we have got to do something about the mental marijuana we are feeding our kids."

The St. Louis Star-Times managing editor cited Milton Caniff, creator of "Terry and the Pirates" and "Steve Canyon," as "one cartoonist with a real sense of responsibility" but added that "unfortunately there are not many with that attitude."

Caniff carried the defense for the daily newspaper comic artists.

Caniff challenged Bennett to name a single daily newspaper strip—"I'm not talking about comic books"—that is filled with information on how to commit a crime that has caused any child to do so. Caniff said:

"The whole exploitation of daily newspaper comic strips is virtue; the hero always wins."

Caniff told the editors that the National Cartoonist Society has just formed a new committee on ethics. But, he said, the newspaper editor is the key since they know what the people want and must inform the cartoonists.

Isaacs said that good taste in comics "doesn't mean elimination of sex, adventure or anything vital to the continuity of the strips."

Feather-bedding scheme of Firemen's Union to put an additional fireman on diesel locomotives has been CONSIDERED TWICE!

Fact Finding Boards appointed by Presidents Roosevelt and Truman have said these demands were "devoid of merit" and they were

REJECTED TWICE!

Now the Firemen's leaders seek to paralyze railroad transportation to compel the railroads to employ a wholly unnecessary additional fireman to ride on diesel locomotives. This scheme is plain

FEATHER-BEDDING!

LEADERS of the Firemen's union have called a nationwide strike starting with four great railroads on April 26. These railroads are the New York Central, Pennsylvania, Santa Fe, and Southern.

The union claim that a second fireman is needed on grounds of safety is sheer hypocrisy. Safety has been dragged into this dispute only in an unsuccessful effort to give a cloak of respectability to vicious feather-bedding demands.

After a careful study of the first demands of this union, a Presidential Fact Finding Board on May 21, 1943, reported to President Roosevelt that there was no need for an extra fireman on diesel locomotives.

Again, on September 19, 1949, after a second hearing on the union leaders' demands, a second Board reported to President Truman that: "there presently exists no need for an additional fireman... upon either the ground of safety or that of efficiency and economy of operation."

Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good

Although the railroads accepted the Board findings, the union leaders have brazenly rejected them.

They represent that an extra fireman is needed for "safety" reasons. Here's

what the Board had to say on that point:

"The safety and on-time performance of diesel electric locomotives operated under current rules have been notably good ...

"Upon careful analysis of the data submitted on safety, we have concluded that no valid reasons have been shown as a support for the Brotherhood proposal under which a fireman would be required to be at all times continuously in the cab of road diesels. The proposal must be rejected."

The real reason behind these demands is that the union leaders are trying to make jobs where there is no work. In other words, a plain case of "feather-bedding."

The railroads have no intention of yielding to these wasteful make-work demands.

"The Safety Record of Diesels is Outstandingly Good..."
PRESIDENTIAL FACT FINDING BOARD REPORT
Read these excerpts from official reports of Presidential Fact Finding Boards:

"The safety record of Diesels is outstandingly good, and it follows that the safety rules now applicable have produced good results."

"The safety and on-time performance of Diesel-electric locomotives operated under current rules indicate that Diesel-electric operation has been safer than steam locomotive operation..."

Remember! These are not statements of the railroads. They are just a few of the many similar conclusions reached by President Truman's Fact Finding Board which spent months investigating the claims of the union leaders.

TERMITES. Cause damage in excess of fifty million dollars annually for REPAIRS alone. These destructive pests work in secret and may be destroying your property NOW. Have it inspected by an expert and be sure. There is no charge for the inspection, and if your property is not infested they will tell you so. If termites are present you will be SHOWN and a fair price quoted for a treatment which is guaranteed for TEN YEARS.

Many irresponsible amateurs—self-styled "exterminators" and "part time" entomologists offer fantastic "guarantees" and bargain prices but you owe it to yourself to be SURE you are securing the services of a thoroughly reliable and FINANCIALLY RESPONSIBLE company whose guarantee really has a meaning.

An effective termite treatment must not only eliminate the termites now present in the structure, but also prevent the countless thousands of others, who live in the GROUND outside the house, from returning.

The almost unbelievable cunning of the termite makes the successful treatment of your property a job for those who have the proper equipment and the KNOW HOW. Further, because of the termites tenacity and persistence it is sometimes impossible to completely exterminate them with ONE treatment.

Therefore it is vital that the company doing the job be AVAILABLE later to return, if necessary. Unless you are SURE of this fact you may find yourself with a "Guarantee" but no one STILL IN BUSINESS to MAKE GOOD.

Always remember—a guarantee is only as good as the man who gives it.

Tiger Teams Booked For Stiff Action

Tests Set For Golf, Track, Ball Crews

Circleville high school baseball, golf and track teams are scheduled for heavy action this week.

Both golf and track squads are scheduled for two contests each this week, while Tiger baseballers have one on tap.

The CHS baseball team is to play host to Wilmington Tuesday in Ted Lewis Park, seeking its third South Central Ohio League win in as many starts.

Circleville's diamond crew has so far successfully defended its league crown of three years standing by whipping Washington (6-2) and Hillsboro (13-1).

Tiger Coach John Daugherty said the Tuesday tilt may be played as a double header in an effort to make up for an earlier game between the teams which was postponed.

Circleville's track squad also will be seen in action Tuesday when it travels to Chillicothe.

THE TIGER tracksters to date have lost all three of their early matches by narrow margins. The CHS cindermen have lost twice to Lancaster (61-57 and 59-58½) while losing again last Friday to host Westerville (61-56).

In addition, the Tiger thinsies will travel to Wilmington Friday for a triangular meet against the host Hurricane crew and Hillsboro. The Friday meet will be the first test in SCOL competition for the locals, prepping them for the SCOL championship contest May 10 in Wilmington.

CHS golfers also have two matches on tap for this week.

They travel Wednesday to Columbus to meet University duffers and play host Saturday at Pickaway Country Club to Athens Bulldogs.

The Tiger golfers to date have lost one match while splitting a triangular with Lancaster against Chillicothe. The loss (15-1) was handed them by Columbus North in the season opener.

Night Softball League Chiefs Call Meeting

Circleville Night Softball League officials are to meet at 8 p. m. Monday in Hanley's restaurant to discuss the coming softball season.

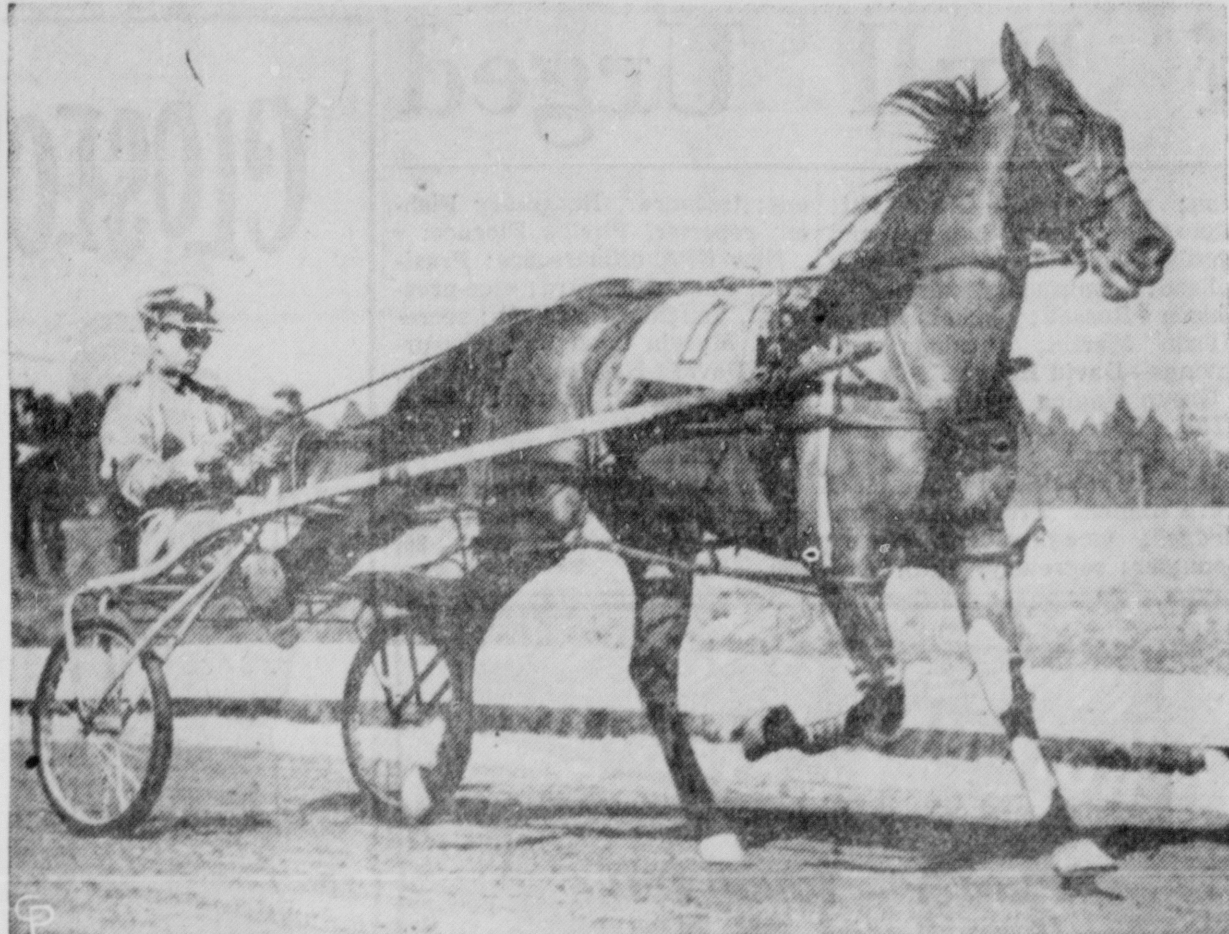

Primary topic of the discussion for the team managers, sponsors and players will be a proposal that Friday nights be used by a local team in competition in an inter-city league.

A proposal was made during the last meeting of the loop that a team managed by Paul "Snow" Seymour be permitted to use the diamond every Friday night.

Seymour said that his team does not plan to enter the local league, but will enter an inter-city league to bring new teams to Circleville.

So far, the league chieftains plan for a six-team league here, with league games scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and make-up games for Friday.

The league tentatively is scheduled to begin May 8.

Medics Warn Against Head Hurts In Ring

CHICAGO, April 24—The American Medical Association warned today that boxers risk eventual "loss of mental power and physical coordination" and require the strictest medical supervision and control for their safety.

An editorial in the current issue of The AMA Journal noted an "inherent risk attached to any activity in which the head is often the target for blows" and called for "the most stringent kind of supervision if the sport is to be conducted at all."

The Journal said a joint committee of the AMA and the National Education Association opposed boxing as an interschool activity because "there is a resultant potential of permanent injury . . . particularly to the brain, that may eventuate in a loss of mental power and physical coordination."

The committee felt that few schools have adequate teaching and medical personnel to provide maximum safety for boxers and suggested that many college athletes risked unnecessary injuries for "the sanction and implied approval" of their alma mater.

Red Wing Iceers Win Coveted Stanley Cup

DETROIT, April 24—Detroit's Red Wings, specialists in coming through when the chips are down, dusted off an honored spot on their mantelpiece today for hockey's most coveted prize—the Stanley Cup.

The battling Wings twice came off a losing game last night to tie up the New York Rangers, finally exploding a sudden death goal to win, 4 to 3, one of the closest playoff finals in National Hockey League annals.

It was such a display of fierce determination that the crowd of some 13,000 fans was on its feet most of the 29 minutes of overtime.

The big silver mug, symbolizing international supremacy in the hockey world, now returns to the United States for the first time in seven years. Detroit was the last American team to claim the global championship in 1943. A smashing 20-foot backhand shot off the stick of Pete Babando gave the Wings the game last night after New York had surged ahead with an early 2-0 lead and later held a 3-2 margin. The winning goal was set up by a perfect pass by Center George Gee.

The Buck sailors, trailing Denison by five points going into the final test, scored a resounding victory in that event to take the title. Denison wound up with 90 points. Toledo came in third.

Local Thinlads Place 8th In Virginia Relays

A quartet of Circleville high school distance runners Saturday distinguished themselves in the Huntington, W. Va., Relays.

The Circleville tracksters won eighth place among 23 teams represented in the classic cinder contest while breaking one of its own school records.

In addition, the team won its heat in the medley relay with a time of 8 minutes, 26 seconds, while finishing fourth in the medley finals.

Members of the team were Ted Sims, who ran the 220-yard leg of the medley contest; Jim Starkey, 440; Tom Phillips, half mile; and Lowell Thomas, mile.

In the mile relay the local team broke existing local school records by making the distance in 3 minutes, 41 seconds. The time netted them second place in their heat behind Dayton Fairview.

Ez Charles' Future Hinges On Physicals

WASHINGTON, April 24—Ezard Charles' future as a fighter hinges today on two physical examinations ordered by the National Boxing Association, the organization which recognizes him as the world heavyweight champion.

The NBA ordered the Cincinnati fighter to go through with the checkups to see if he is fit to meet Freddie Beshore in their oft-postponed Buffalo title fight. If Charles passes the physicals the bout probably will take place in May or June.

The NBA noted that Charles has a "muscular ailment around the heart" and if either of the two examining groups finds him physically unfit he will be forcibly retired from the ring.

It was made clear by Harvey Miller, executive secretary of the group, that if an NBA-selected board does not find Charles fit the title "will be declared vacant with Charles being automatically retired."

The first check will be made within a couple of weeks and the second will be made by the New York board May 11.

Charles' title fight with Beshore was postponed twice. The first time Charles was reported to have been suffering from a rib injury. The second postponement occurred when New York State Commission doctors found that a muscle near the NBA champion's heart had been strained.

Ex-Tech Grid Coach Is Dead

ATLANTA, April 24—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for William A. "Bill" Alexander, 60, widely-known former Georgia Tech football coach, who apparently died in his sleep Sunday.

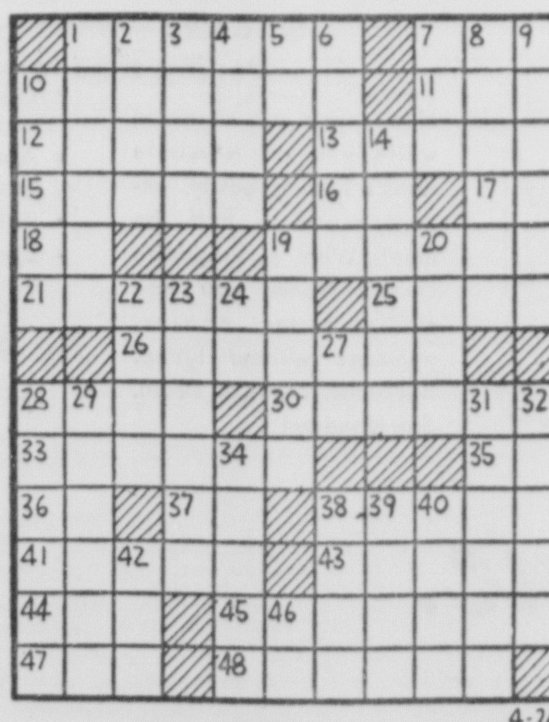

Alexander had suffered from recurrent heart attacks in recent years. The veteran grid mentor, who became the first coach to send teams to each of the four major New Year's Day bowl games, had served as athletic director at Tech since his retirement as football coach in 1944.

Cross-Bred Dairy Cow, Beef Bull Urged

Local Agent Notes Plan Of Expert

Nation's Economy Claimed Factor

How about breeding dairy cows to beef bulls?

The idea was tossed out Monday by Larry Best, Pickaway County agricultural agent.

Indicating that he was not necessarily advocating the plan, Best said it had been proposed by O. R. Johnson, an agricultural economist at the University of Missouri who claims cross-breeding would help not only farmers but steak-hungry white collar workers as well.

The Pickaway County expert who said "it is something to think about," says that Johnson points out that farmers can expect to have acres taken out of basic crops such as corn and wheat as long as crop controls are in effect.

The problem of what to do with extra land may grow bigger as the years pass. Johnson believes this diverted land will have to produce roughage.

"Grasses and clovers are the only major crops which escape limitation even under the present Production Marketing Administration program," Johnson says. "The only way to cash meadow and pasture production is thru livestock and its products. But there are not enough grazing animals to consume the forage we are now growing."

"Meat production offers a way out and, fortunately, there is a shortage of beef and mutton. Unfortunately, there are not enough breeding animals to produce the necessary stockers and feeders. That can be remedied only by increasing herds and flocks, which takes time."

JOHNSON ADDS that cattle feeders can take more time in finishing the available supply of steers. This would make a market for grass and hay. But it would slow the production of steer beef and raise the price of meat still higher. So Johnson favors the beef-topped dairy calf.

"The crossbred calf would make acceptable beef," the Missourian continues. "About half the poundage of beef produced in this country comes from dairy herds. Most consumers never know the difference when the skin's off. The crossbred calf would find ready demand until the supply of straight beef is built up."

Johnson believes that perhaps 80 percent of the cows could be bred to beef bulls without injury to dairy herds. The other 20 percent, which would represent the highest producers, would be bred to dairy bulls to raise replacement heifers.

"Sires for this service will be easier to find than the extra beef brood cows that would be necessary. Artificial insemination associations could also help by making beef semen available," he declares and adds:

"The white collar workers have had to get out of the beef market. There are about 30 million people in this class. Too many are living on $2,000 a year or less. They can't afford steaks at 70 to 90 cents a pound."

"The only immediate way to turn out extra grass into food is thru the beef-topped dairy calf. There's no reason why the 25 million acres of PMA land couldn't produce 200 pounds of beef each if we can provide calves. This cross is the quickest way to do that."
